EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Bob Burdette, the humorous lecturer, is again on an eastern tour delivering his celebrated lecture, "The Pilgrimage of the Funny Man." Bellefonte certainly ought to hear "Bob" this time.

—Henry C. Campbell is an honest, thrifty, prosperous farmer—just the man to look after the interest of the whole people. fairly and honestly. If they understand their own interest they want him for our next Commissioner.

—General James A. Beaver, of this place, attended the tri-State soldiers' gathering at Carlisle on Wednesday last, and made a very eloquent and stirring speech, of which the newspapers speak very highly.

—Two wild-cat speculative insurance companies were organized in Snyder county last week, and are now in full running order and ready to take risks in any amount. Snyder county is booming with insurance companies. It is reported that every man and boy in the county, over 18 years of age, is either a director or president of a life insurance company.

In previous statements of Chairman Rankin's unpaid bills from last fall's campaign we stated that he owed George H. Wolf $3.00. We have since learned that it is John Wolf to whom he owes this sum, but he is indebted to George Wolf to the amount of $7.00. While this does not alter the amount, yet we desire to make these statements as correct as possible. In addition to what has been published he also owes Horatio Williams $5.00; Geo. Skinner, $16.00; Bunnel & Aikens, $24.00, and Harvey McClure, $3.00, which swells the debt as far as published to $794,44, and there are still some claims not yet stated. It was rumored that he was going to make a statement, but three weeks have passed and no statement yet.

Chester A. Arthur is the twenty-first President of the United States, his twenty predecessors having been in office during a period of ninety-one and a half years. Of these, Washington, Jefferson, Madison Monroe, Jackson and Grant each served eight years. The next longest term was that of Lincoln, who was elected for two terms, but served but four years, one month and eleven days. Seven Presidents—John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Van Buren, Polk, Pierce and Hayes—each served four years. Seven others served fractional terms, of which that of John Tyler was longest, being three years and eleven months. The next was Andrew Johnson's, continuing three years, ten months and nineteen days. Mr. Filmore's was two years, eight months and twenty-five days; Taylor's one year, three months and five days; Garfield's six months and fifteen days; and Harrison's which was shortest of all, beginning on the 4th of March, 1841, and closing by his death on the 4th of the following April—just one month.

Cummings engaged himself to marry a Pennsylvania widow, Mrs. Kennedy; but he was disturbed by the fact that her first husband had been dead only a year, and on the day set for the wedding sent her a note saying that he would go into the solitude of the woods to pray for Divine guidance. The enraged widow read the message to the guests when they assembled, and declared that she would not become Cummings' wife, no matter what light he might obtain from above. Williams, an old and previously discarded suitor, saw his opportunity and offered to act as bridegroom. He was accepted, and when Cummings arrived, with his conscience quieted, there was no widow.

The Potency of the Barrel.

The work of the Democratic Convention is before us, and once more the power of the barrel in politics has its perfect illustration. The public will not fail to mark the coincidence of enormous wealth and success in a Democratic Convention. The party keeps true to its modern traditions. It frames platfroms denouncing in unmeasured terms all sorts of monopoly, and then puts a bloated monopolist upon them and invests him with the party standards. We are glad to believe that Mr. Orange Noble is a good citizen and neighbor. We make no war upon the man. The fact that he has by the modes familiar to monopoly the world over accumulated a few millions, more or less, does not excite either our envy or our apprehensions. We like to see men prosper, and we like prosperous men. But after half a century of outcry against bloated wealth and monopoly, and in behalf of "honest poverty," we should like to see the Democratic party nominate a man for an important office somewhere who in some sense represents that middle estate which can be called neither poverty nor riches.

But that will not happen. There is a call for men who are willing and able to furnish the sinews of war, and whenever the Democratic convention assembles, that call is obstreperous and downs every other. We all know what it did in 1876 in a national way, though that was not the first time the potency of a plethoric barrell had been demonstrated in Democratic political arrangement. It has had pretty constant demonstration ever since. It was demonstrated when Bookwalter was able to push aside all competitors the other day in Ohio, and it was demonstrated again on Wednesday at Williamsport. There were other and important considerations that naturely bore upon the selection of a candidate, but the potency of the barrel asserted itself and swept them all away. The other candidates may console themselves with the reflection that wealth is rated an accident of life, and that as a test it leaves every other consderation far behind in the race for political preferment.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Noble can understand the platform upon which he stands, though if he undertakes to interpret it in the light of what his party has done for Pennsylvania in past times, it is probable that he will give it up in despair. We should like to see him or anybody else interpret the substance of the sixth resolution in the light of the administration of State affairs by the Democrats prior to 1864, for we have to go back so far as that to find a purely Democratic administration. The party has been telling the people what it would do if they would trust it with power once more for twenty years. But history informs the people of what it did do when it had plenary power. The evidence of Democratic economy was a debt of about forty millions, with arrears of interest. What had it to show for that debt? What assets did it deliver up to its successor with which to provide for the discharge of that indebtedness? What useless offices did it ever lop off the incumbents were Democrats? How did it provide for the maintenance of State credit so as to reduce the interest charge on the debt? How and when did it restrain monopolies? And when did it ever administer the affairs of the commonwealth without reference to the interests of the old canal ring? Perhaps Mr. Noble will explain some of these things.

—The Lock Haven Journal says that there was an alarm of fire in Bellefonte on Monday at 5:30 p. m. at Garman's hotel. The prompt measures of two ladies, Misses Minnie and Alice, prevented the happening of anything serious. The Journal must have a peculiar faculty for gathering local items. This is certainly news to us, and the item will probably shock the young ladies themselves.

Democrats Offering a Township Office for a Vote.

The Watchman of September 16 has an article entitled, "How they paid him," in which it is alleged that Simon M. Spangler, of Miles township, intended to vote for Hancock, his old commander, at the last Presidential election, but that Beaver and other leaders in this town bought him off with a promise of the nomination for Commissioner, but that instead of keeping their promise they used all their influence against him. Although Gen. Beaver does not think or pretends not to believe that it makes any difference what truths or lies are told about him by the newspapers, and especially Democratic newspapers, yet in justice to the General, in a general way, and to Mr. Spangler in particular, we will say that the story told by the Watchman is a lie—a bold, bad, contemptable lie, prompted by mean, petty malice and spite. The truth is, the Watchman misjudges the character of both of these men. Gen. Beaver is not dumb enough to promise what he had not power to grant, and Mr. Spangler is too shrewd a man to be influenced by a promise which he knew no man could redeem. Mr. Spangler is a soldier, and when Hancock was nominated, like many other good Republican soldiers, he had nothing to say against the man who, as a soldier, he had learned to love and respect. For this reason the Democrats jumped to the conclusion that he could be made a convert to their cause and they made the same dishonorable proposition to him that they made to a great number of others in the county—they promised him a township office if he would vote their ticket. This offer was indignantly rejected, its only effect being to stimulate Mr. S. to show more party zeal so that his intentions should not be misunderstood. Gen. Beaver, nor any other so-called leader, ever talked to or scolded him for any dereliction, or supposed dereliction, of duty to his party. General Beaver knows well that this man never faltered when duty called either in the service of his country as a soldier or a true and loyal Republican. It is often said that a thief has escaped by crying stop thief, so the Watchman would divert public attention from Democratic rascality by charging the same crimes upon their more honorable opponents. The Republicans do not run campaigns by buying voters, and even if they did, in this county at least, they have no offices to give, and the debt left from last fall's campaign shows that they had no money for such a purpose.

Commissioner.

Once in three years we hold in Centre county a very important local election in which the voters are called upon to chose most of the county officials. Such an election is to be held this fall. The voters have presented for their choice three separate tickets. In times past the Democratic ticket has been chosen, not because it presented the best array of men, but simply because it was Democratic. We submit that such a course is not wise, but that in our local elections those men should be chosen who will best serve the interest of the whole people For Commissoner the Republicans present Henry C. Campbell, of Ferguson township. Mr. Campbell was born in Ferguson township, was educated as a farmer and has followed that business all his life, except while in the service of his country. In August, 1862, he enlisted in the 148th regiment. P. V., faced death in that hotly-contested engagement of Chancellorsville where he was wounded, at Poe River, and at Spottsylvania, May 12, 1864, where he was again wounded in the right side.

He served until the close of the war and was honorably discharged, when the country no longer needed his services, and returned to his farm. He is an honest, straight-forward man; one who will as commissioner serve the interest of the people faithfully. He is identified with the great farming interest of the county, and knows the needs and wants of our people. No better man for this position is presented for our suffrage this fall, and we think we risk little in predicting that he will be overwhelmingly elected. A vote for Campbell will be a vote for the honest, faithful administration of our county affairs.

Mr. Noble's Prize.

Mr. Noble was able to take the train to Erie, whose favorite son he was proud to proclaim himself, with a nomination for the State Treasurership in his pocket or stuffed in his hat or sewed up in the lining of his coat. At all event he took the thing home with him to show to friends and to handle for his general enjoyment.

There is no certainty that the nomination will be of any practical use to Mr. Noble, and it is quite probable that he would have got more lasting service out of a good roadster that would have cost less than half the money. But Mr. Noble wanted the nomination and didn't hesitate to say so. He has wanted it before, but before he learned how to get it he had to become acquainted with grief and secure the active friendship of somebody with a better understanding of the business. The first bridge being successfully passed a great waste flows between the nominee and the office. Mr. Noble's idea is that he can make the landing on Mr. Wolfe's back. It is, perhaps, too soon to set an exact value on that bridge, but it is not too soon to say that a man in Mr. Noble's position and of his hopeful cast of mind is liable to see double and imagine vain things.

With a numerous, boisterous and hard-hating element of the Convention sent home in the dumps to wet-blanket the nominee before he gets fairly started, the road from Erie to Harrisburg is not so direct and easy to travel as a sanguine man flushed with victory may imagine. It will require the whole party in good working order to carry this nomination through, and though there may be no serious and avowed bolt, this is not thus far assured. In addition to the disappointed and enraged delegates who contributed so largely to the confused conclusion of a gathering which opened in phenomenal harmony, and who left Williamsport in no amiable mood, there may be thoughtful Democrats, as there certainly will be Republicans, who will not desire to open the State Treasury doors to the evil influences which involved in trouble Mr. Noyes administration of the office.

Another consideration of great moment and bearing directly on the issue is that the Republican successor of Tresurer Noyes has given the Commonwealth an administration of economy and reform, stopping up leaks and keeping a watchful eye on the Treasury. This is fairly to be set down to the account of the Republican party, and unless the Democracy shall give some better reason for a change than its habitual desire to pick up any office within reach, the people will let well enough alone and decline to drag Mr. Noble from the invigorating atmosphere of Erie to the malarial envelopment of Harrisburg.—Philadelphia Press.

Treasurer.

The Republicans of this county present to the consideration of the voters for the office of Treasurer Philip Gephart, of Zion. Mr. Gephart was born at Oak Hall, this county, September 29, 1830, and is now fifty-one years old. He has lived in the county most of his life and has followed the business of farming. When a young man he went to Mifflin county to serve as apprentice to the carpenter's trade which he followed three years, when he returned to the business of farming, which business he has followed ever since. His present home is at Zion, where he owns a farm on which he has worked and lived for the last 27 years. He has never been an office seeker and never sought the nomination which the Republicans have now honored him with. Of him it may be truly said the office sought the man, not the man the office. This fact in itself is a recommendation of fitness.

He is known by all who know him well, to be a thorough upright, honest man, who, if elected to the office of treasurer, will reflect credit upon the constituancy who elect him. No better man could be found in the county. He should be voted for by all men who want honest efficient public servants, regardless of party; for although a consistant Republican he is not a politician nor a man who can be influenced or swayed by any corrupting influences. He is firm and unyielding in his honesty. Such men are needed in our local offices. Such men will serve the real interest of the farmer, mechanic, laborer and tax-payer. If the people consider their real interest and are not swayed by party prejudice they will vote for Philip Gephart for county Treasurer.

The New York Conventon.

The latest returns of the election of delegates to the Convention which meets in New York on Wednesday show no change in the situation. The number of delegates yet to be elected is trifling; the number of delegates who are not committed for or against Mr. Conkling's attempt to resume the leadership of the party after his betrayal of it and his surrender of the Senate into Democratic hands, it utterly insignificant. If there should be conceded to Mr. Conkling the delegates who are uncommitted, those who are yet unchosen, and those elected from contested districts, he would still be in a minority of about seventy votes. If the contests in the seven disputed districts should be decided in accordance with the facts that are known to every intelligent Republican in the State, there will be a majority against him of over 120 votes, even conceding to him all the uncommitted and unchosen delegates; and the indications are that with the gains to be expected from those delegates, the majority against him will exceed that figure.

The friends of the former senior Senator from this State protest that he is not an issue before the coming Convention, that a false issue has been raised, and that it is 'unmanly' to bring his name into this discussion. They can hardly except the Republicans of the State so soon to forget the circumstances of the call of the Convention—the summons to meet in New York, where the great city machine could use its influence directly upon the delegates; the election of Mr. Platt, Mr. Conkling's partner in the resignations and in the public condemnation which followed them, to be the presiding officer of the State Committee; Mr. Conkling's fierce struggle in his own town to be elected a delegate, which was carried to the extremity of a bolt, and the election of a delegation having no claim whatever to seats. All the circumstances of the time went to show that Mr. Conkling was engaged in a campaign to capture the Convention, which he was then to exhibit to the country as his property—as a proof that the Legislature which rejected him misrepresented its constituents, and as a proof that the Administration which asserted its rights against him did not have the approval of the people. This was hardly to be borne at a time when the President lay upon his bed of suffering, and not any more to be borne when he had passed away from us. It was in this way that Mr. Conkling became, by his own act, an 'issue' in this canvass, with a result which, we presume, is as clear to him now as to others.

There need be no quarrels in the Convention, and we trust there will be none. But there is work for it to do, nevertheless. One of the first and most important of its duties will be to pass upon the seven contests. These involve something more than local dissensions. They seem to have been inspired by a common purpose to deprive majorities of their rights where the majorities were unfriendly to Mr. Conkling. He set them the example in his own district by a minority bolt. The example was followed in both of the remaining districts in his county, in one of them eight delegates bolting from a Convention of forty-eight. In the Ist Oswego District the majority were deprived of their parlimentary right to vote upon the question of the chairmanship, and had no recourse but to withdraw. The same outrage was committed in the IId Albany District. Four Conkling delegates in the XIIth District of Kings will try to convince the Convention that they were a majority of sixteen, and tweny-one delegates in Richmond County that they were a majority of sixty-six. These are un-Republican practices adopted for un-Republican ends, and one of the most important duties of the Convention will be to show the people of the State that whatever differences may arise in the Republican party, it tolerates none but honest methods.—Tribune.

Golden Sea Sand.

On the seacoast round Cape Commerell, British Columbia, exist deposits of sand which, black in appearance on the surface, are found on examination after digging a few inches to be full of specks of gold. A hand full of the sand washed in a sauce displays numerous sparkling grains, which are pure gold, so fine in tiny scales that they are popularly called 'float gold.' The existence of the gold has long been known, but the difficulty has been to find a means of successfully and economically extracting it. Several machines have been tried, but without success; and after several failures the experiments were abandoned and nothing has been done for some years. A new venture is however, about to be made with a machine invented by a San Francisco company, which promises to be successful. The machine consists of six drawers of layers of plates covered with amalgamy. Each plate has holes punched through it about a quarter of an inch in diameter. The gold bearing sand is 'dumped in' on the top plate, the water being turned on. The action of the water sets the sand in motion and with the gold it passes through the holes. The sand falls from plate to plate, leaving behind it the loose, free gold, which attaches itself to the amalgam; and by the time the sand has reached the sixth plate it is accompanied by very few grains of gold that have successively escaped attachments to the amalgam on the previous five plates. The process is simple, but it is reported to be successful and to more than pay expenses.

Words of Wisdom.—'Gem'len,' said the old man as he got his legs under him, 'a pusson who labors under de ideah dat he am foolin' de world will sooner or later git de grand laff. A pusson can deceive de public for a few days or a few weeks, but as soon as de fraud am exposed he am a gone coon. You may stan' your hats ober on your ears, hang out your brass watch-chans, an' puff away at yer cheap cigars, but de majority of men will see right frew you like a buzz saw choppin' up cheese. What we am, we am, an' let us bear in mind de solemn fact dat while skim milk has its value an' uses, it won't make ice cream nor deceive de babies.'

Two young men who move in the very best Austin society, went on a spree not long since. After they were pretty well under way one of them said in an inebriated tone of voice:

'Let's bid each other good night, Bill.'

'Why, you ain't goin' home a'ready? It's right in the shank of the evening.'

'Of course, I'm not goin' home now; but after a while we won't know each ozzer from a shide o' shole leather, and let's shay good night right now before it' sh too late.'

They embraced.

When Lieutenant Flipper embezzles $5,000, everybody says, 'the colored cadet!' When Captain Howgate steals $100,000 nobody remembers that he is a white man, or charges him with his race. Colored men should have a proportionate share in the public service, or as they evince fitness therefor.

Poetry.

After Heine.

PURITY.

Thou seemest like a flower,
So pure and fair and bright,
A melancholy yearning
Steals o'er me at thy sight.

I fain would lay in blessing
My hands upon thy hair,
Imploring God to keep thee
So bright and pure and fair.

LURLINE.

The cool air darkens, and listen,
How softly flows the Rhine!
The mountain peaks still glisten
Where the evening sunbeams shine.

The fairest maid sits dreaming
In radiant beauty there,
Her gold and her jewels are gleaming,
She combeth her golden hair.

Two Opinions.

HIS'N.

"I would not be a girl," said Jack,
"Because girls have no fun;
They cannot go a-fishing, nor
A-shooting with a gun;
The cannot climb up trees for fruit;
They cannot play base-ball,
Nor bathe without a bathing dress,
Which is no fun at all.
And when they grow up to be big
They still have lots of woeses,
For if they love a man they've got
To wait till he proposes."

HER'N.

"I would not be a boy," said May,
"For boys are nasty things,
With pockets filled with hooks and knives
And nails and tops and strings;
And when a boy becomes a man
He's got to buy girls rings,
Treat them to oyster stews, ice cream,
And lemonade and things.
And when upon a girl a youth
Has squandered all his money,
And she goes off with some one else,
Perhaps he don't feel funny!"

Our Story Teller.

Rose Geranium.

'I hate the odor!'

Harry Penryth dropped the tiny spray of rose geranium which held, and a shudder crept over him. It was on the wide, cool veranda of a large hotel at one of the fashionable watering places, and his companion was Mrs. Warburton, a young and lovely widow. She looked up into his handsome face with a peculiar glance from under her long, dark eyelashes.

'Why, Mr. Penryth,' she cried, gayly 'what an idea! To hate a flower!'

He tried to smile, but it ended in a failure.

'I will tell you, Mrs. Warburton,' he answered, 'and then, perhaps, you will understand me better. In the first place, ever since I can remember—even when a child—the odor of rose geranium causes a curious sickening sensation to creep over me. I cannot understand it; it is a sort of antagonism, or repulsion, for which I fail to account. Then later—'

He paused, and a far-away look stole into his eyes, as though recalling the past; a leaf turned down on some page of his life history.

'I had a dear friend once,' he went on after a pause, 'a dear friend—I never had another. Gerald Brooks and I were like brothers; modern editions of Damon and Pythias they used to call us in the college where we were educated. I had no hopes or aspirations apart from Gerald; and his interests were as dear to me as my own. Nothing could hurt him which did not hurt me. I regretted exceedingly—regretted with a strange pang of jealously—when at last in the course of events, Gerald fell in love. The lady was one whom he had met while traveling for the firm which employed him. I never met Miss Delorme, but I learned that she was the perfection of grace and beauty; an elegant and accomplished woman, and withal, an arrant coquette. She was heartless and unprincipled, and set about breaking my friend's heart, coolly, deliberately and systematicly. Mrs. Warburton, that woman was as certainly the murderess of Gerald Brooks as though she had slain him with her own hand, for she blighted his hopes, and ruined his peace and lured him on with her false, deceitful smiles, and her glorious beauty, until he confessed his love and cast his heart, his great, noble, manly heart, at her feet, only to be laughed at and told scornfully that she was on the eve of marriage with a decrepit old millionaire.

'Now, Miss Delorme's favorite perfume—so Gerald had told me—was rose geranium. She wore the flower frequently; its scarlet spikes glowing in vivid relief in the braids of her jet black hair. Somehow I came to associate the two—the woman and the flower—which I so unaccountably disliked, and a feeling sprang up in my heart for Miss Delorme which grew and flourished like the blossom itself—a feeling of strong aversion.

'And so time passed, and poor Gerald was daily fed with false hopes and illusions until at last the blow fell. Had I been in his place when the knowledge of her baseness came to me I should have spurned her as I would a noxious reptile from my path; but Gerald was not made of as stern stuff as I am, and so he could not recover from the shock. Oh! Mrs. Warburton, it was an awful blow to me when they told me the dreadful truth that Gerald Brooks had taken his own life!

'It all occurred in the far South, where he was traveling. I sent at once for his bod—poor, murdered bod! It came. He looked like a marble statue lying there, white, cold and dead, his hands folded over the heart that had beat with true and faithful love for the woman who was the cause of all this, and clasped in his dead hand I found a spray of rose geranium; I tore it from his grasp; I could not see his body desecrated by anything she had touched or cared for. From that hour I have hated the odor and sight of the blossom with greater intensity than ever. It may be childish and weak in me; if so, I confess my weakness, but I cannot resist it.'

He paused and rested his handsome head on one white, shapely hand. Harry Penryth was young and wealthy, and many a woman had endeavored to awaken a responsive chord in his heart. But although he moved in gay society and was courteous to all, and attentive to some, no woman had ever really touched his heart until he had met sweet Lily Morcton. But Ethel Warburton, the rich young widow, loved him with a most wild, absorbing passion which carried everything before it. The crafty Mrs. Warburton soon discovered that there was no engagement existing between Miss Moreton and Mr. Penryth, and racked her brain for some method of disenchanting the young man, and turning his love for Lily into aversion and dislike.

While Harry Penryth related the story of his friend and his tragic death Mrs. Warburton's face had grown very white; a wild, haunted look stole into her eyes, and the little hand, which held a sprig of the obnoxious rose geranium was icy cold and trembled.

She threw the flower away.

'I m sorry I offended you with my geranium,' she said, humbly, 'it is no favorite of mine!'

It was a deliberate falsehood, but no matter. 'The end justifies the means'—at least she thought so.

As soon as she was alone in her own chamber she paced the floor like a caged tigress.

'My God!' she panted breathlessly, 'what would he say—how he would scorn me, if he knew that I am Ethel Delorme, the woman who jilted Gerald Brooks! But he never shall know. I love him! And I shall win him, if I die for it!' She fell into a profound reverie. All at once her dark beautiful face lighted up strangely. 'I have it!' she exclaimed. 'I believe I can see my way.'

That night Mrs. Warburton stood before the mirror in her room, arrayed for the hop which was to take place below stairs. She was regal in cream satin and lace, with white roses in her magnificent black hair. She moved slowly toward a window where a pot of rose geranium was sitting, and stooping over it, broke off a mass of scarlet bloom. Then humming softly to herself, she left the room, crossed the wide corridor, and tapped at a door.

'Come in!' cried a sweet voice, and Mrs. Warburton turned the knob and entered Lily Moreton's room.

'How lovely you are!' she cried, rapturously, a jealous pang at her heart, meanwhile, as her eyes fell on the slender figure in white lace and pearls. 'But oh, Lily, my love!' she added with a gush of apparent sincerity, 'why do you wear pearls? See! I have brought you some of my favorite flowers. I raised them myself. I cannot wear them with this costume; red and yellow would be too gorgeous for me, and I do think this dash of scarlet with your lovely white lace would be too pretty for anything. Will you wear them, ma chere?'

The young girl looked pleased. She was a sweet, tender-hearted little thing, incapable of deceit, and therefore, unsuspecting.

'You are very kind Mrs. Warburton,' she replied; 'indeed I will wear them.'

So the wily widow fastened the red blossoms in Lily's golden hair and at her throat and waist as conspicuously as possible; then, her work accomplished, she flitted away.

When Lily descended to the grand salon below she was joined at once by Harry Penryth, who offered her his arm for a promenade. A pair of flashing black eyes followed the two as they moved slowly through the room, and a pair of rosy lips curled with a strange smile as she saw Harry Penryth gaze fixedly at his companion, and turned pale to the very lips. The subtle instinct which so strangely affected the young man was slowly but surely entering his heart.

After a time Mrs. Warburton observed Mr. Penryth making his way through the crowd to her side. He looked pale and troubled.

"Come out and walk, Mrs. Warburton, will you not?" he said offering her his arm. With a triumphant look in her eyes she arose and they strolled out into the moonlight.

"Where is Miss Moreton?" queried the widow archly.

"I do not know," he replied a trifle coldly. "Let us sit here," he added, pointing to a rustic seat.

It was a lovely night; his companion was beautiful and fascinating. Heaven only knows of what foolishness Harry might have been guilty, but just then a voice fell on their ears from the shrubbery near.

"Ah, Dupont!" cried a man's voice, and a whiff of cigar smoke floated by; "why didn't you tell me 'the Delorme' was here?"

"Delorme?" returned his companion "I don't know of whom you are speaking."

The first speaker laughed lightly.

"You remember the woman that jilted Brooks, don't you?" Poor Gerald! he was a noble fellow! Well she afterward married old Warburton, the millionaire, and worried him into his grave within a year. She's a fascinating widow, and the young men (who don't know her) flock round her like moths in a candle! I hear Penryth is the last victim!"

"Indeed?" laughed the other; and the two passed on.

Harry Penryth turned on his companion a face of marble whiteness. "What does this mean?" he gasped. "Answer me, are you Ethel Delorme?"

She laughed recklessly.

"Is it fair to place me forever under a ban?" she asked, "just because a man whom I never could love was foolish enough to care for me? Mr. Penryth, I was not to blame, listen!"

"Hush!" he said, sternly." Don't attempt any palliation. Shall I take you back to the house Mrs. Warburton?"

And Ethel Warburton knew that it was all over, that the game was played, the die thrown and lost!

* * * * * *

Alone on the moonlit veranda, Lily Moreton sat, pale and sad. Harry Penryth came to her side and bent tenderly over her.

"Lily," he whispered, "where did you get those rose geraniums?"

She started slightly, and blushed.

"Mrs. Warburton gave them to me," she replied; "wasn't she kind?"

"Very," he answered, dryly. He sat down then beside Lily and told her the story of his friend and his tragic fate. Before it was concluded she had torn the blossoms from there resting places and tossed them over the veranda railing. They fell on the grass plot below, right at the feet of Ethel Warburton. And recognizing she knew the truth, knew that her wicked wiles had not succeeded, and all was lost.

And she was right, for before the season was ended the newspapers announced the wedding of Lily Moreton and Harry Penryth.

Times Have Changed.

The morning watch had just been disposed of in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday when a much-battered man, with tattered garments, was arraigned. The accompanying policeman showed a tomato can to the Court and laconically remarked, "Guager."

"Your Honor," said the prisoner, with an impressive movement of the right hand, "my story is a sad one. With grief I look back to my childhood's home, when in the cool of the morning I walked through the fields and meadows listening to the joy-burdened song of the skylark and wa ching the merry scamper of the chipmunk. With my head pillowed on some grassy mound, I enjoyed the bubbling of the brooklets and the soothing murmur of the zephyrs as they rustled among the tree-tops. But times have changed. I—"

"They have changed, indeed," interrupted the court sadly. "In place of the grassy mound, an empty beer keg serves you for a pillow. You hear the dripping of the beer drainings into the tomato can with the same throbs of joy that the splashing of the meadow streamlets were wont to bring. The thrilling notes of the skylark have made way for the milkman's early call. But there is still hope. I will give you a home on Blackwell's Island, where you can see the stunted willow trees which border the river wave in the breezes, heavy with the balmy odor of Hunter's Point. The water rats will recall the festive chipmunk, and your childhood's days have come again.

The Trial of Guiteau.

WASHINGTON, September 28.—No reply has been received from Mr. Scoville, brother in-law of Guiteau, as to whether he will act as counsel for the assassin in his coming trial. Mr. Scoville was in Chicago when the message of District Attorney Corkhill reached there, but it has been forwarded to him. The Grand Jury, which meets next Monday, will doubtless find a true bill on the indictment for murder without delay, but able lawyers here are agreed that there is no likelihood of an immediate trial, certainly not at the October term of court. If the District Attorney has desired a speedy trial his exceptional treatment of Guiteau has defeated such an expectation. The denial of all intercourse with friends and advisers, if any he had, the illegal retention of his mail, the opening of his letters and furnishing their contents to the press, the refusal to allow him to see the newspapers; in fact the whole treatment was that of a prisoner already condemned and sentenced, has given to Guiteau's counsel ample cause for demanding the utmost latitude in the preparation of his defense. Were the court anywhere else in the United States, a change of venue would be demanded and granted as a matter of course. The District Courts however, are peculiar in that no such application can be entertained and no appeal in criminal cases lies to any other court. In civil cases the Supreme Court of the United States can review the proceedings of the District Courts, but not in criminal cases. The only claim that the counsel can make in aid of his client will be to prepare a defense. The peculiar treatment of the prisoner has not yet ceased, for in a conversation yesterday with him, Corkhill refused even to admit to him the fact of the President's death, and Guiteau only knows by guess and reference that his crime has been successful. The next term of Court after the October term will open the first Monday in December and it is thought that the trial will be deferred until then. Guiteau is adverse to being tried at once, and yesterday pointed out to the District Attorney that a community in which his attempted murder in his cell, on two different occasions, has been applauded by the people, and in which neither of those making the attempt have been arrested by the civil authorities, is not one in which he can have a fair trial until after the excitement has cooled down. The subject of bringing the prisoner back and forth from the jail is occasioning much trouble to the District authorities. Even after his arrival in the Court House his protection will be difficult. The room is not large, holding probably not more than four hundred persons besides the officers of the Court and witnesses, etc. Tickets of admission will probably be issued by the Judge of United States, Marshal Henry. While there are some here who would be willing to see the assassin torn to pieces by a mob, and there are elements for such a mob here, the mass of the people of the District express the hope that no such disgrace will fall on the community and country.

SCOVILLE NOT HEARD FROM.

CHICAGO, September 27.—Guiteau's brother in-law, George Scoville, this city, is now at Harlan, Wisconsin, and has not been interviewed yet, as to whether he will defend the assassin. His son, Louis P. Scoville, this morning said he had received a communication from District Attorney Corkhill for his father. It relates to his going to Washington to undertake the defense of Guiteau. This, with other papers, had been forwarded to Mr. George Scoville, in Wisconsin. The son did not know whether his father would undertake the defense or not, but rather thought he would. He is expected back in the city shortly.

A Lost Opportunity.

A Clevelander who had put in two weeks at the Flats came down on the boat yesterday on his way home. Among his traps he had something in a box which claimed considerable attention, and a man finally approached him and said:

I see you caught one.

Yes.

Going to take him home?

Yes.

Was it the largest one you saw up there?

Oh, no! this is only a young one?

Going to tame him, I presume.

Well, I guess so.

Did he bite you?

Bite me? Why, they never bite. You know what kind of a bird this is, don't you?

Of course I do. That's a St. Clair flat musquito, isn't it?

It was a splendid opportunity, and the temptation was great, but the Buckeye was a truthful man, and he sighed heavily as he replied;

N—no, sir. That is a St. Clair Flats mudhen. I didn't see a skeeter half as large as this.

ONE is a little puzzled on reading the following to know whether the barber misunderstood the point of the minister's reproof or not, but the uncertainty helps the fun of the thing and it is funny.

A minister, with a rather florid complexion, went into the shop of a barber, one of his parishoners, to be shaved. The barber was addicted to heavy bouts of drinking, after which his hand was, in consequence, unsteady at his work. In shaving the minister he inflicted a cut sufficiently deep to cover the lower part of his face with blood. The minister turned to the barber and said, in a tone of solemn severity: "You see, Thomas, what comes of taking too much drink." "Aye," replied Thomas, with the utmost composure: "It makes the skin very tender."

THE girl that makes the acquaintance of every young man she sees, without waiting to know who or what he is, is held in the same esteem by men as the yellow dog that will lick every hand that pats its head.

The Attack on the Autopsy.

It does not appear that Guiteau has retained any Washington lawyer for his defense, and yet it is hard to imagine what purpose there can be in the industrious effort that has been made to discredit the late President's surgical attendants, unless it were to create the impression that he did not die from Guiteau's shot. It is the same line of defense that was adopted in the Landis case, and it would not be discreditable to a sharp criminal lawyer, though it is sufficiently discreditable to anybody else. It appears, however, that all this absurd talk about the autopsy is not designed for the defense of Guiteau, put for the "vindication" of Dr. Boynton, a person who occupied rather peculiar relations to the President during his illness and equally peculiar relations to the correspondents. He was not "in the case," but he knew more about it, if the revelations he poured so freely into the willing ears of the reporters were to be credited, than all the surgeons together. It was Boynton who gave us, from time to time, those startling theories in pathology that were the puzzle of physicians all over the country, and it is Boynton who is now trying to save himself from oblivion by contradicting the surgeons and impugning their character.

When Agnew and the others found at the autopsy that the facts did not bear out their suppositions, they frankly said so. But they also as frankly stated facts which were as they had anticipated, but which showed this person Boynton to be what he had already appeared to be, an ignoramus. This has made Boynton mad, and he undertakes to dispute the report of the autopsy. How much importance should be attached to anything he says will appear from his very first grievance. He complains because "expert pathologists" were not sent for to make the examination. It is not customary, he asserts, for practitioners to do this themselves; he himself never made an autopsy, and undertakes to dispute with the group of surgeons that included, among others, one of the most thorough anatomists in the world and a pathologist of more than national reputation.

The whole truth is this. Before the President's death Boynton insisted that he had an abscess in the lungs. Now this is a thing that can be definitely determined by physical signs that an educated physician should not mistake. The surgeons knew that there was not an abscess on the lungs, and when Boynton was stirring up the correspondents on this subject they called him aside and advised him to hold his tongue. This rankles in the man's mind and he is determined to convince the country that there was an abscess—in fact, that the lungs were full of them. But the condition he describes, of numerous small openings exuding pus, is precisely the condition described by the surgeons as a muco-purulent bronchitis, the points which he takes for abscesses being sections of the air passages. The column of stuff that Dr. Boynton has poured out through the Washington correspondents is full of just such ridiculous blunders as this, and as he has not complained of being misrepresented, it is fair to presume that the blunders are his. So far as their professional character is concerned, the surgeons can well afford to meet such attacks with silence. If the record of the case is to be challenged, it should be by those who understand the subject they are talking of.

A NOTED divine has recently remarked that three-fourths of the inhabitants of heaven are women. Assuming that he speaks with authority it must be admitted that his statement ought to cause at once some lively masculine volunteering for the army of the faithful. Some thoughtful persons may remark that, as a rule, good women are not pretty or interesting, and that if a man wants lively feminine society after death he would do better to go downward instead of upward. Any one, however, who has studied celestial probabilities from such authorities as are accessible, are of the firm conviction that nothing uninteresting or unbeautiful will be seen in the abode of the blest, the outward appearance of all being miraculously changed to suit their new surroundings. There is only one drawback to the general rush of men for the sweet by and by—it stands to reason that all women in heaven will be entirely respectable in conduct and conversation, and what a hell such a heaven would be to many men!

WHEN a telegram comes from the far West and states that a fire "destroyed every business house save one in the town," we feel sorry for the town. But when, next day, we learn that the "business houses of the town" consisted of a beer saloon and a grocery, and the latter was saved, our sorrow is mitigated upward of considerable.—Norristown Herald.

"Last nite ez I sot on de front doah step mendin' de handle ob one ob de ole woman's flatirons," began Brother Gardner, as the last notes of the triangle died away, "long cum dat nigga, Thornapple Scott. Stone Blind.

Several men were making purchases in a Michigan avenue store, Chicago, recently, when a man who had been looking out the window for some time, turned and said:

'Well, that's a bad case."

'Well, I don't know who is the husband of this woman out here in the wagon, but if I were he I'd go across the street and smash that fellow's head.'

'Why?'

'Why, because he has been working like a beaver for the last half-hour to get up a flirtation with her.'

At this one of the men began to chuckle. Then the chuckle ran into a laugh, and finally he had to sit down.

'What's the matter with you?' was asked.

'Why, I'm—I'm that woman's husband.'

'Are you? And you are laughing over the flirtation?'

'I—I can't help it,' he said, as he went off into another fit. 'Just think of him a flirting and a strutting up and down and a doing the purty when the old lady out there has been stone blind for seven years—ha! ha! ha! ha!'

ONE of the most successful and trustworthy farmers in Georgia is a negro named Pleas Harper, who has just paid $32,000 for 2100 acres of land lying on Broad River, in Oglethorpe county. The white man who sold him the land says of Harper: "There is not a better business man in Oglethorpe county than this negro. He can tell you any day to a cent how he stands with the world, and as a farmer I never saw a better. He is economical, his family all work, and he can get more out of a hand than any one I ever saw. Please, too, is not an all-cotton farmer. He has been making from 100 to 150 bales of cotton a year on rented land, besides growing enough supplies to run his place. In fact, his cotton crop is nearly all clear money. You just ought to see the Bermuda grass hay he has saved this summer.

A TOWN IN TWO STATES.—There is a town called Texarkana, lying partly within Arkansas and partly within Texas, with a broad street marking the boundary. It has two Mayors, and the State laws governing on one side have no binding force on the other. Arkansas made a severe enactment against the free sale of firearms, whereupon the hardware merchants moved their stores to the other side of the street, thus going into Texas, where the sale of revolvers, like their use, is free. The Arkansas mayor issued a proclamation against the sale of liquor on Sunday, greatly to the advantage of the saloon men in Texas, until the venders on the other side moved over and regained their customers.

If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening at a distance of 10 inches, your eyes are failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified; it should look natural size but plain.

It is known to all who have been compelled to resort to the use of Spectacles (notwithstanding they may be perfectly fitted to correct the optical defects), that for some cause, not until recently well defined, their use was attended with fatiguing, smarting, and otherwise disagreeable sensations. This is a universal fact of experience, and has been supposed to be entirely beyond remedy. This disagreeable sensation and disturbance of the eye is produced chiefly, perhaps we ought to say entirely, from the fact that ordinary lenses increase the sensation of heat (to which the eye, more than any other organ or part of the body, is sensitive), as also the actinic or chemical properties of the rays of light.

It is well known that these peculiarities of light are identified with certain colors of each ray; and the point of importance, or without using technicalities, is to construct lenses so that these properties of light shall be neutralized; this can be done by introducing a neutralizing tint into their manufacture, the difficulty of which, however, consists in the selection of a color which shall have this effect, and, at the same time, shall not otherwise impair the lenses for purposes of vision. The

Arundel Tinted Lens

Is designed to effect this purpose. The peculiarity of its manufacture consists in the introduction into the glass of a slight Violet Color, in such manner that the high and low numbers of the lens prepared from this glass, although varying in thickness, are of the same delicate tint and of sufficient power to neutralize the heating and actinic power of the rays of light. Read the following:

[From R. S. Mershon, Esq., Zanesville, Ohio.]

"I have put the Arundels through the following tests:—I placed an eight-inch Arundel, and an eight-inch white lens side by side, sharply focused in the strong sunlight, with their foci directed on the bulbs of two thermometers, and the difference was four (4°) degrees in temperture in favor of the ARUNDEL. Again, I placed the same lenses side by side on a piece of sensitised photographic paper, and the white glass discolored the surface quicker than the ARUNDEL. These two tests prove these two points, viz: that the ARUNDEL intercepts the solar heat-rays and the chemical rays also."

And the following from a Centre county man whose letter can be seen at my store:

* * * "I am very much pleased with the glasses. They have been more beneficial to my eyes than all the medicine I ever put in them."

If you experience any unpleasantness in reading or can't see distinctly, come in and have your eyes tested. I think I have something good for you.

PE-RU-NA
This is a new remedy, originally compounded and introduced to the medical profession and the public at large by S. B. Hartman, M. D., of 307 Penn Ave., Pittsburg, Pa., who has prescribed it to over 40,000 patients, and in every case with the most gratifying success.
Its effect upon the system is entirely unlike that of any other remedy, and is the only medicine needed in almost every disease to which flesh is heir—Epilepsy (Falling Fits) being the only exception. In this PERUNA should not be used. In Constipation and Diseases of the Female Organs and Bladder, MANALIN should be given with it. PERUNA is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, each one, according to medical authors, a great remedy in itself.
Dr. Hartman has succeeded in extracting the active principles from these ingredients and in combining them into one simple compound, which at once coincides with the VIS MEDICATRIX NATURÆ in every disease, and the work of restoration commences with the first dose. There is not an organ that it will not reach nor a disease it will not cure. For particulars send for a pamphlet.

THE LATEST NEWS.

The President's Assassin.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—George Scoville, Guiteau'e brother-in-law, arrived here last night from Hartford, Wis., where he has a beautiful summer residence. He said he had received notification that Guiteau had chosen him for his counsel, and that he would have to appear on next Monday morning. 'Have you answered the dispatch?' 'Not yet,' replied Mr. Scoville. 'It was sent to me to Wisconsin, but I had not made up my mind what to do.' 'Will you act as Guiteau's counsel?' 'I would rather leave it to the United States Government to appoint counsel to defend him, but my wife, who is Guiteau's nearest relative, and almost his only friend upon eatrh, insists that I shall appear as his counsel, and I suppose I shall have to grant that request.' 'Will you so telegraph Mr. Corkhill?' 'Yes, sir; I shall answer his dispatch to-day to that effect.' 'When will you leave for Washington?' 'I shall be there in time to be on hand when he is called upon to plead.' 'Will you engage other counsel to assist you?' 'That I haven't determined upon yet.' 'Do you anticipate a speedy trial?' 'I don't know about that. I don't think Guiteau can be tried right away. When he is called upon to plead the time of his trial will be fixed. We will have to secure time in order to prepare for the defense. Witnesses will have to be summoned from all parts of the country, and that will take time.' 'What will be your defense?' 'I think that has been pretty well outlined. I am not in favor of making any technicality to the form of indictment or to question the jurisdiction of the court. Our defense will be insanity, and I shouldn't advise anything else. We have known nothing of Guiteau for three years past until this summer. I do not apprehend but that he will be accorded a fair trial. Our greatest effort will be to get men on the jury who will have judicial minds, men who have read of the case, know the facts, and who will be fair in the trial. I believe the Government will see that Guiteau is protected, and that he shall have an impartial trial.'

George Scoville to-day formally asked Emery Storrs to assist in the defense of Guiteau. Storrs declined with thanks.

A Washington dispatch says Colonel Corkhill, United States District Attorney, received this morning, from Attorney General Stockton, New Jersey, a communication in which he states that no action will be taken in Guiteau's case by the authorities of that State.

Guiteau's Indictment.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—District Attorney Corkhill to-day took the last steps in the preliminary arrangements for securing the indictment of Guiteau next week by issuing subpœnas to the following witnesses for the Government in the case of the "United States against Charles J. Guiteau." Edward A. Bailey, stenographer, who has a large mass of notes of conversations with Guiteau while in jail, giving his history from early boyhood, reasons for committing the act, &c., George W: Adams, President of the Evening Star publishing company, who was in the depot en route to Cape May when the shooting occurred; George W. McElfresh, detective; Dr. D. W. Bliss and Dr. D. S. Lamb, who were present at the autopsy; Jacob P. Smith, special officer at the Baltimore and Potomac depot, who witnessed the arrest and assisted in the arrest of Guiteau; Sarah E. D. White, in charge of the ladies' waiting room at the depot, who witnessed the shooting and helped raise the President; Robert A. Park, ticket seller, who jumped through the window of his office and assisted in raising the President, Policeman Patrick Kearney, who spoke to the President just before the shooting, telling him he had ten minutes to wait for the train, and also assisted in Guiteau's arrest. The District Attorney will ask Senator Don Simon Comacho, Charge d'Affaires of Venezuela, who was in the depot and witnessed the shooting, to testify. All the above named witnesses are directed to be in attendance at the reassembling of the Grand Jury at the Criminal Court room on Monday next, when the presentment of the case will be made to the Grand Jury.

No answer has yet been received by the District Attorney from George M. Scoville, Guiteau's brother-in-law, who was requested by the prisoner to appear as his counsel. Guiteau says he is not afraid of the law for that will protect him, and prevent his being hung. He is reported as feeling somewhat disappointed at not receiving a prompt reply from his brother-in-law.

Cyclone in Kansas.

EMPORIA, Oct. 1.—The long drought was broken here yesterday afternoon by one of the heaviest rain storms ever seen in this section. The streets were literally flooded in half an hour and ravines ran like rivers. After this storm subsided another arose in the west, which soon turned into a violent and destructive cyclone. A dark, greenish-looking cloud made its appearance about 6:30 P.M. which attracted attention, but it was not believed it was fraught with danger at this late season of the year. The cyclone seemed to have started at a point four miles west of this city, and traveled in a northeasterly direction, leaving Emporia only about a mile and a-half from the track. Nothing is heard of its devastation further than a point fifteen miles northeast of here. It was one of the most destructive storms that ever visited this section of the State, and in this city there are now lying four dead bodies of people killed by its fury, while along its track lies the debris of many ruined homes. As many as a score of buildings were utterly demolished. The loss of property is very great, and a large number of people were injured by falling stones flying timbers, &c.

Mahone Will be on Hand.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Ex-Senator J. L. Lewis, Readjuster candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Virginia, is in the city. He asserts that Mahone will find no more embarrassment in voting on the organization of the Senate than he did at the last session, and that he is not the man to shirk a responsibility of any kind. He claims that the Readjusters' success is certain, and that the Legislature will be largely Readjuster, securing the election of an anti-Bourbon United States Senator.

Twelve Colored Persons Drowned.

ATLANT, GA., Oct. 1.—A dispatch just received says the ferryboat from Isle of Hope to Skidaway Island sprung a leak yesterday at a few hundred yards from shore. A party of eighteen market people were aboard with produce for Savannah. The boat filled and sank within a very few minutes. Twelve people were drowned. The remainder were rescued. Twelve coffins were sent from Savannah yesterday and the victims all buried. All were colored.

The Train Robbers Captured.

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 30.—Information received here to-night states that all three of the robbers who captured and robbed the train on the Iron Mountain road last Thursday night were captured yesterday, one near Sulphur Bluff, Hampton county, Texas, and two in the Indian Nation. Pursuit had been vigorously followed up to a village in Sevier county where the robbers seperated. The pursuing party devided and kept trace, Captain Hall, of the Iron Mountain Road, following the Texas bound robber. His efforts were rewarded by coming up with him early yesterday morning where the robber was taking breakfast. Hall pulled down on him with a double barreled shot-gun. The robber surrendered, saying "If you had given me a minute's notice I would have given you a lively deal." The remaining two robbers were followed into the Indian Territory and captured with no trouble. All three were brought to Hope to-night and lodged in jail. They have been fully identified.

Hurricane in Iowa.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The Inter Ocean's Desmoines special says a Desmoines and Fort Smits passenger train was blown from the track at Perry this evening and overturned by the heavy wind. The train had just coaled and was leaving the station when the wind struck it. The coaches were crowded with passengers, eight or nine of whom were badly bruised but no bones broken. Further north the storm was a hurricane. The Minneapolis and St. Louis Road is reported badly torn up. The depot at Irvington, a few miles north of Fort Dodge, on a branch of the Chicago and Northwestern, was struck by lightning and nearly destroyed. Eighteen men in the building were prostrated. All but one recovered.

A later dispatch says: The wind and rain storm in Guthrie, Green and Kossuth counties to-day inflicted serious damage. Half a dozen farm houses in Guthrie were blown over and several persons seriously injured. In Guthrie county several business blocks were unroofed, residences moved from their foundation, the Baptist Church and other buildings were damaged.

Garfield's Remains.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Friends of Mrs. Garfield here have been informed that she is greatly shocked to learn that so large a part of the remains of her late husband is now in the medical museum. She consented to the injured vertebra and rib being brought here, because she understood they might be used in the trial of the assassin, but she never consented to the bringing of anything else here, and believed that all else of the body of her husband was in the casket in Ohio. She now knows that all the inward parts from the neck to the loins were brought to Washington, and have been exhibited to no one knows how many curious surgeons. She is indignant, but finds it difficult now to rectify the matter.

A Surprise to the Star Route Ring.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The action of the Government in the star route business has created a lively commotion here. It was entirely unexpected, and took the star route people and their friends by surprise. They are rallying, however, and begin to show fight. They claim that before the grand jury meets on Monday next they will make a counter move that will not only astonish the Postmaster General and others of the prosecution, but the entire country as well. On the other hand the prosecution claim that they have so far only expended a small amount of ammunition, and that they have lots more left, and it it all of a dangerous character.

Star Route Rascality Confessed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Solomon Star, whom President Arthur removed as Postmaster at Deadwood, Dakota, has made a written confession, declaring that for several years past he has continuously made out false certificates of star route service on route 34,156, between Sidney and Deadwood, of which Gilmer, Saulsbury & Co., are contractors. Star's confession exposes the rascality of the star route ring in the Northwest, and a copy is in the hands of the Postoffice Department here.

The carpenter editor of the Boston Post is out with this advice: "The true way for a woman to drive a nail is to aim the blow square at her thumb. Then she'll at least avoid hitting her thumb, anyway."

Counterfeiters Caught.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—Last fall the appearance of a finely executed counterfeit ten dollar piece was noticed in this city and Sacramento. The queer coins were made of Babbett metal and lead, and were electro plated. Other than being a trifle light they were undistinguishable from the genuine eagles and were more than unusually dangerous productions. The cities mentioned were soon flooded with several thousand dollars worth of the queer, small tradesmen being the principle sufferers. Detectives, after months of labor, arrested a woman named Antonette Laiason to-day while attempting to pass one of the counterfeits. Several other base pieces were fonnd on her. A man named Lawler is in jail awaiting trial for making the counterfeit.

The Case of Sergeant Mason.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The story published yesterday to the effect that Sergeant Mason's attempt to shoot Guiteau was the result of a plot among the soldiers of the Second Artillery, which furnished the guard at the jail, is indignantly denied by both men and officers. They regard Mason as a good soldier, whose mind was unsettled by malarial fever, combined with the prevailing excitement. It is believed that his trial will result in acquittal on the ground of temporary insanity, and his discharge from the army. The court-martial does not meet until October 25th.

Tornado in Nebraska.

OMAHA, Oct. 1.—A tornada, arising at one o'clock this morning, nearly demolished the town of Madison of about a thousand inhabitants. The railway buildings were wrecked and most of the private residences laid level. Two persons are known to have been killed. The telegraph wires are down. The Union Pacific Railway sent out a train for the homeless people and for the use of its officers. The tornado also swept over Canton in this State, blew down twelve buildings and injured twenty persons, one a lady, fatally. Many are homeless and lost all they possessed.

England and Yorktown.

LONDON, October 3.—The Times in an editorial on the forthcoming Yorktown celebration, says:—"We can afford to feel toward the Americans an envy which is harmless to them, but may be useful to ourselves. They are celebrating the hundredth birthday of their independence. The observance of birthdays belongs to the golden age of the family. Every year they can mark the progress toward the full development of beauty, wit and power. Every year brings them nearer to the glittering prizes of life hung up on high for the quickest, strongest, readiest. * * * We have no national birthdays, anniversaries or centenaries of any kind. We can only carry so many centuries in our minds. We have not room for the later ones." Concluding, the Times says:—"As to the defeat, since their was no other solution of the difficulty and nothing could convince the Court and its surroundings of their error, we have quite as much reason as the Americans to share in their centenary thanksgiving. Fortunately the British flag was not tarnished. Nor could one ever venture to suggest that Lord Cornwallis surrendered a day before he was obliged to, or that he would have gained by waiting; for there is no doubt that the long delayed reinforcements, even if they would have done him any good, would not have been able to force the French and American blockade."

Bank Robery.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 3.—This morning, while S. H. Burton was in the safety deposite department of the Lafayette Bank, on Third st., cutting coupons from four per cent bonds, three men came in. One of them entered into conversation with the president of the bank, another talked to Mr. Burton, while the third got away with the bonds—ten of $1,000 each. The men escaped undetected.

The Outcome of a Quarrel About Money.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Oct. 3.—William Morgan, of Barnet. Vt., because involved in a quarrel with a man named Merchant last night, and received injuries from which he died soon after. The difficulty was about some money that one man owed the other.

"Will the coming man fly?" Is he question, and the "Fat Contrib tutor" thinks he will—when the coming woman gets after him.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

Memorial Services at Unionville.

Monday of last week was a sad day in our town. Indeed, all the days since that memorable morning when the words were, "Our President is dead," have been freighted with a burden of sorrow. We have so eagerly watched for every day's news, since the fateful bullet did its work; joyed in each improvement and mourned each relapse, yet mingled with all the anxiety was so great a faith in his recovery that when the saddest word of all came we were not ready for it. The town was Sabbath-like in its stillness. All work was suspended in and about town, the stores were closed all day and the post office from 11 a. m. until 3 p. m. Union memorial services were held in the Presbyterian church, conducted by Rev. Kuhn and W. A. Ridge. The church was well filled with a silent and attentive audience. Part of first chapter of II. Samuel and 46th Psalm were read, and prayers and addresses by both speakers. Sad and appropriate as were the words uttered, that draped face looking down upon us in silence spoke more than all, and many of us remembered how marred and changed by terrible suffering was the face hidden beneath the coffin lid. Not to-day only will he speak to us but in the years to come will his name be a synonym for all that is noble and great in home and State. The church was beautifully and appropriately draped. Over the entrance was a handsome silk flag half mast, mingled with black drapery, rosettes and loops of crape. Back of the pulpit was a portrait of Garfield framed in black and over it flags looped in crape. The pulpit and pillars were covered with the sombre drapery and below the festoons in front of the pulpit was another picture draped. The choir gallery and altar table were arranged to correspond with the rest of the church, and altogether made a very impressive and solemn picture.

The Late Frederick Pletcher.

Our correspondent at Howard writes as follows concerning the late Frederick Pletcher, of that place, a notice of whose death lately appeared in these columns:

We feel sorry to chronicle the death of Frederick Pletcher, which occurred at his residence in this place on the 19th ult. He was born Jan. 9, 1797 and at the time of his death was 84 years, 8 months and 10 days old. The community has indeed lost a kind, Christian neighbor, whose wise and generous counsel will leave an aching void. He was a full brother of Anna Pletcher, whose death was recorded in your paper about three months since, and has two aged brothers still living at Howard. The decaased's father was engaged in the Revolutionary war.

The remains were interred in the burying ground one mile below Howard, whither they were followed by a large concourse of friends. All his sons and daughters were present at his funeral excepting one son, who resides in Kendal county, Ill. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. A. Delong, who delivered a very practical sermon from the words found in the first chapter of Philipp., 21st verse.

Well could a minister deliver a sermon at the death of a man like this. The deceased had been a member of the Mennonite church for upwards of sixty years, and for the last thirty-six years had been chosen as their minister. None knew this kind old man but to love him. He was a patient and loving father, who bore his afflictions most nobly. The Friday previous to his death he called his relatives to his bedside and bade them a final farewell. The whole life and character of this Christian man was a most exemplary one, and his words will live and shine for years after his body shall have returned to dust.

From Pioneer Mills.

A correspondent at Pioneer Mills, Clearfield county, sends us the following communication:

Having seen jottings from all sections of the country in your valuable paper, allow me to say a few words about Clearfield county. Pioneer Mills are located on Moshannon creek, eight miles north-east of Philipsburg, and is located in Morris township, Clearfield county, it being a small village with quite an extensive saw mill and a large grist mill. A superior quality of flour is manufactured here, and the millers, Messrs. Kaup and Kyler, are gentlemen thoroughly familiar with their business and very accomodating to their customers.

There seems to be some prospects of a railroad connecting with this village before long. The engineering corps is now within sight of the town, and our people seem rather sanguine of its early completion.

Rev. E. Foresman, the Kylertown minister, gave us a call on Saturday evening last, accompanied by a handsome-looking lady who some day will probably write her name "Foresman."

Nearly all the land owners hereabouts are selling their coal lands at $15.00 an acre, which may be regarded as a very cheap price.

Kylertown, our post office, is a fine little village about five miles distance from this place. It is a thriving little town, with two hotels (one licensed and the other temperance) two churches, a number of stores, and a fine lot of dwelling houses. The Presbyterian congregation is erecting a very handsome new parsonage in that place, and quite a number of other improvements are going on.

—Are you coming to the fair?

—Sechler & Co's is the great down-town grocery store.

—If you have the chills take Peruna. If you expect or fear them, take Peruna.

—Itching and unpleasant sensations positively cured by the use of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy.

—We are not yet sure who will take the premiums at the fair, but it is an established fact that Sechler & Co. always keep the premium groceries.

—John Cassidy, an Altoona shoemaker, has become violently insane and was Thursday conveyed to the insane asylum for safe keeping.

—Unhealthy or inactive kidneys cause gravel. Bright's disease, rheumatism and a horde of other serious and fatal diseases, which can be prevented with Hop Bitters, if taken in time.

—Mr. Lyon is at present in New York buying fall goods. He is accompanied by Miss Pauline Lyon, who will assist him in the selection of dry goods, silks, millinery, flannels, cloths, &c. LYON & Co.

—The ladies who sometime since were unable to go out, have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, are quite recovered, and have gone on their way rejoicing.

—The large water wheel at Duncan, Hale & Co.'s grist mill was Thursday broken, in consequence of which operations were suspended. A new "over-shot" wheel will shortly be placed in position.

—Mr. J. J. Everett, one of Lock Haven's leading business men, died on Monday last from conjestion of the liver, caused by overheating himself at Bedford Springs. His funeral was held on Wednesday, and was largely attended, most of the business places of the city suspending operations in order to attend the obsequies in a body.

—The citizens of Philipsburg, this county, held a special election on Tuesday last. The object of the election was to decide whether or not fire plugs should be put in at the borough's expense, and the tickets were accordingly printed "for" and "against" plugs. Strange as it may seem those "for plugs" were the successful party by forty-six majority. Hereafter that 'burg will be considered the "plug" town of the county.

—The golden autumn days are once again at hand. The fruits and produce of Mother Earth are being gathered and stored away for future use. Unusual as the drought has been, the crops have not all been destroyed and there yet remains sufficient to feed the inhabitants of this locality. Throughout the winter which will soon be here all visitors to Sechler & Co's grocery store will find the spacious room occupied by the firm well filled with a large and tempting stock of fresh groceries. Sechler knows what the people of this section desire and always supplies the demand.

—The large number of the fair sex who will visit the fair to-day and to-morrow is enough to fairly take away our breath. If the fair promises of the gentlemen who have the arrangements in charge are to be given a fair amount of credence it is perfectly fair to say that this will be the fairest fair ever held during fair weather. Should the weather be unfair it is fair to assert that the fair may not prove even a fair success. We hope all will attend the fair and pay their fare and that the receipts may be fairly good. In former years fortune has treated the agricultural fairs of Centre county in an unfair manner. For fair and honorable dealing the grocery store of Sechler & Co. cannot be excelled, and people are fairly unanimous in the opinion that it is one of the fairest of all the fair stores of this fair borough.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Feb. 2, '80.
I know Hop Bitters will bear recommendation honestly. All who use them confer upon them the highest encomiums, and give them credit for making cures—all the proprietors claim for them. I have kept them since they were first offered to the public. They took high rank from the first, and maintained it, and are more called for than all others combined. So long as they keep up their high reputation for purity and usefulness, I shall continue to recommend them—something I have never done with any other patent medicine.

Socialists and the President.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Pursuant to a call by Professor George Vaughan, of Virginia, a meeting of the Socialists and Liberals was held in the hall northeast corner of Eighth and Buttonwood streets, last evening, to take action upon the death of President Garfield. Professor Vaughan was a prisoner in Libby during the rebellion, having been sent there for his pronounced Union principles, and after his release did much to alleviate the sufferings of soldiers in the field, which action earned for him the title of "The Southern Humanitarian." He opened the meeting with a speech, in which he said that Guiteau had been paraded before the country as a Socialist, an assertion which he had himself denied by his utterance when the dastardly shot was fired, "I am a Stalwart of the Stalwarts." No Socialist doctrines prevailed with him. He was an outcrop—a creation of that system of spoils which was the creed of infamy. The Socialists disclaimed all violence, whether in violation of law or under its operation, for even capital punishment was not deterrent of crime. The assassination of the President, although now looked upon as a terrible calamity, which indeed it was, has served to open the hearts of humanity to succor misery, and the lesson would prove a blessing for all future time. Mr. S. Waldman, following in an address, during which he paid a feeling tribute to the deceased President, and several other gentlemen made remarks pertinent to the occasion. Resolutions of condolence with the country and President Garfield's family were adopted, and the meeting adjourned.

SILVER CREEK, N. Y., Feb. 6, 1880.—Gents: I have been very low, and have tried everything, to no advantage. I heard your Hop Bitters recommended by so many I concluded to give them a trial. I did, and now am around and constantly improving, and am as strong as ever.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

Funeral of President Garfield at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27.—The last scene of the obsoquies of the nation's dead Chief Magistrate closed to-day with splendor rarely if ever equalled in this country. The sultry h at which prevailed up to two o'clock made the great length of the pageantry oppressive both to the spectators and partakers. At nine o'clock the the entrance to Monumental Park was closed to the crowds which have been passing through to view the catafalque all night, and from that time none were admitted save the favored holders of badges. The number of these who entered the park and lined drives reached some thousand by ten o'clock.

EXCELLENT ORDER MAINTAINED.

The great feature of the day here has been the perfect order which prevailed throughout the vast multitude which filled the city to overflowing. Among the tens of thousands which crowded the streets around Monumental Park and lined the route of procession I did not see or hear of a single case of disorder. The external appearance of the streets, except in the vicinity of the catafalque and funeral cortege, bore much resemblance to a holiday. People laughed, chatted and sotrolled to and fro, or disposed themselves at points of vantage to await the passage of the pageantry which they had come to see. But the perfect order which governed the vast mass, entirely independent of the control of the police, was something wholly unknown in any other assemblage of even half the size, and even among law respecting people of Northern Ohio. The only arrests heard of were those of a few pick-pockets who tried to ply their profession at crowded points.

THE EXODUS.

To-night the streets have been crowded with military organizations and a surging mass of humanity seeking exit from the city, in many cases without success. Several Pittsburghers who tried to take afternoon trains found themselves unable to even gain footholds on the platforms. By 10 o'clock to-night the streets were clearer than they had been for three days, ordinary movements being varied only by the drums of an occasional military body as it marches to the trains. The empty catafalque is still illuminated by eletric lamps and guarded by sentinels. In other respects the city returns to its wonted quiet.

THUS ENDS THE WONDERFUL HISTORY

Of James A. Garfield—wonderful alike in the rise from the humblest origin to the summit of greatness, remarkable in variety of character as soldier, statesman and student, in the horrible and causeless assassination which terminated his life, in a prolonged and weary struggle with death, and finally in the magnitude and worldwide character of the honors paid, not only in this city, but over the civilized world, to his memory. His name and the lessons of his life will be fresh in the memory not only in this generation but in that of the next. Thousands of little children to-day were held up and told to look at the funeral car, that in later life their earliest recollections might bring to their minds him who to-day is both the pride and sorrow of the American Nation.

Exodus from Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28.—The city is being rapidly emptied of the multitude of strangers. The arches over the street along the route of march will be taken down at once, but the pavilion and arches in the park will be allowed to remain as long as they look well. The funeral car has been hauled alongside the pavilion and rests there. The drapings on most of the buildings will be kept to complete the thirty days of mourning. The report last night that an organized effort would be made to steal Garfield's remains caused much uneasiness and a guard of soldiers was sent to watch the vault, but no attempt was made to disturb the body.

Mrs. Garfield, her children and Grandma Garfield, accompaied by Private Secretary Brown, General Swaim and Colonel Rockwell, and their ladies, were driven to the Union Depot this morning in closed carriages, where a special train had been made up to take them to Mentor. The train consisted of a baggage car and the elegant Pennsylvania coach that brought the party from Washington. They wended their way quietly through the crowd that thronged the depot and entered the car, soon after which all was ready to start. The ladies were all heavily veiled, so that they escaped the curious gaze of the crowds. A few minutes after 11 o'clock the train pulled up and started for Mentor just ahead of the regular accommodation.

The crowd still linger about the park, and so many are continually passing through the pavilion that a force of police was necessary late to-night to prevent confusion and keep curious spectators in line. Although the body has been removed to the cemetery thousand of people seem not to tire of gazing on the place where the remains lay, and where most of the floral decorations, though somewhat withered from heat, are yet left. Electric, calcium and gas lights illuminate the scene to-night, the same as last night.

Garfield Monument Fund.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27.—The Garfield Monument Fund Committee to-day issued the following:

To the People of the United States—The movement to secure funds for the erection of a monument over the grave of James A. Garfield is being responded to from all sections of the country, East, West, South and North. In order to make it popular and successful it is desirable and will be necessary for the citizens of the different states to immediately organize. The committee hereby request all national kankers, private bankers, saving banks, newspapers and posmasters to call attention to the movement by posting notices and otherwise to receive contributions and remit the same to the Second National Bank of Cleveland, Ohio, which has been designated as treaeasurer of the fund; also to send the names and postoffice address of all contributors. These names will be recorded in books that will be preserved in the monument. All contributions will be receipted for by the Second National Bank.

Signed by J. H. Wade, H. B. Payne, Joseph Perkins, Committee; J. H. Rhoads, Secretary, 225 Superior street, Cleveland, Cuyanoga county, Ohio.

Cabinet Construction.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Judge Folger's name has been frequently mentioned in Cabinet speculations during the last three days. It is remembered that he was strongly backed by Conkling for the position when Garfield came in, after rejection of the suggestion of Morton. The fact that he had a claim of $180,000 for percentage on the sale of internal revenue stamps while he was Assistant Treasurer at New York was urged against his appointment and prevailed. Had this claim not stood in the way, it is asserted that Garfield had intended to appoint him, and thus all trouble between the New York Senator and the Administration would have been prevented. The Court of Claims decided against Folger's claim.

Mr. Routwell, of Massachusetts, who had an interview with the President, returned home to-day. In conversation he admitted that he had been summoned here by telegraph for consultation by the President, but declined to state the subject discussed.

General Raum, who has been mentioned for Secretary of War should Lincoln retire, declines to be considered as a candidate. He is well satisfied with his present important post and does not believe Mr. Lincoln will retire.

Attorney General MacVeagh adheres firmly to his determination to retire from the Cabinet as soon as the President is ready to appoint his successor. He is entirely satisfied with the present condition of the star route cases. Secretary Hunt left to-day on his tour of inspection.

The Star Route Cases.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The star route cases will be presented to the grand jury next week. It is now stated that the Postoffice Department officials say that all the evidence is in, necessary to convict, and that they are ready for a trial at any moment. They speak very slightingly of District Attorney Corkhill, and hint that the recent postponement of the trials was due to him alone, and that it is possible that he may be under the influence of the star route jobbers. The burden of prosecution has been taken out of his hands, and will be placed with ex-District Attorney Bliss, of New York, and the other special counsel employed by the Government. The star route people, however, have through their many influences endeavored to induce the President to call off the prosecution or let it drop gradually and quietly, but the President has ordered the prosecution to go ahead and convict all who are guilty in that big steal.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

McClellan for Chairman of the State Committee—Noble Using Money.

WILLIAMSPORT, Sept. 28.—The gang is here in full force. Nine candidates are on the ground, each accompanied by his special crowd of claquers and shriekers, and the the uproar of Babel has broken loose around the different hotels. As different unpledged delagations arrive from outlying countries they are surrounded by these claquers who make things pleasant for them by filling them with cheap whiskey and giving them bad cigars to smoke before taking them up and introducing them to the particular candidate they are howling for. Everything is at fever heat. The crowd was undoubtedly larger, much larger, at the National Democratic convention in Cincinnati last summer, but no more active, earnest canvassing was done there for the Presidential nomination than is now going on here in the Treasureship fight.

M'CLELLAND URGED FOR CHAIRMAN.

Captain MCclelland has been here since Saturday in charge of the books and papers of the State Committee. There is a disposition among the delegates to make McClelland Chairman of the State Committee once more to succeed ex-Senator Dill. McClelland was chairman four years ago in the campaign when the Democrats carried the State.

None of the three chairmen who followed him have been able to score a record at all approaching this, and accordingly there is a disposition to make the best of the chance that now seems opening for Democratic success by putting McClelland back in his old position.

WALLACE ON HAND.

Ex-United State Senator Wallace arrived this morning. It is given out that his coming at this time has nothing whatever to do with the convention, but it is quietly whispered around that the distinguished gentleman is really here to look after the composition of the State Committee, with a view to so arranging the wires as to secure his own nomination next year to the Governorship.

NOBLE'S MONEY.

All the present indications are that Noble will be nominated. His lieutenants have much more money to spend among the delegates than the friends of the other candidates. The argument is being used with strong effect in Noble's behalf that he has piles of money and if nominated will be most liberal in his expenditures.

Wallace's Friend Nominated at Williamsport.

WILLIAMSPORT, Sept. 29.—As was originally predicted in these dispatches at the beginning of the week, Orange Noble, of Erie, has won the day, and is the regular Democratic nominee for State Treasurer. It was a desperate fight he made, for at the last field combined against him and tried to push through John S. Davis, of Philadelphia, but the Erie county millionaire was one too many for them. He had the able aid of Senator Wallace at the last. Wallace feels very much pleased at Noble's success, as it strengthens his hands in Erie county, in William L. Scott's home district, and he will not have much trouble in capturing the delegates from that county next year with Noble's assistance. Noble owns a national bank and lots of other things in Erie. He is a tall, robust, middle aged man, with a decided stoop to his shoulders, wears a slouch hat and is extraordinarily careless about his dress. He looks like a recent importation from the hay-seed districts, but is a very shrewd politician for all that.

The wily Wallace has stole a march on his inveterate enemies, the Barrs, by securing three out of the four members of the State Committee from Allegheny county.

If the Wolf side-show should result in the election of a Democratic State Treasurer, Wallace will at once go to work and nominate himself for Governor next year. He has a State Committee fixed up already to suit him, ready for use in case he decides to make the fight. He took no part openly in the contest here to-day. In fact the convention was more distinguished for the l ck of brains than anything else. None of the leaders of the State Democracy were here. Wallace, although in the city, kept away from the convention, and Andrew H. Dill was the only man of recognized ability who had anything to do with it.

Hensel, of Lancaster, the chairman, is a young man, comparitively unknown. He is a young lawyer in Lancaster county, and also edits the Lancaster Intelligencer. He is the young lawyer who was disbarred by Judge Livingston because his newspaper spoke disrespectfully of the court. He is a very fine talker, and if he lives long enough may become considerable of a leader to the Democratic side.

Young Hensel ran the Convention very much to suit himself. He was temporary chairman and permanent chairman. He drew up the wonderfully constructed platform that reads for all the world like a clap-trap editorial in his paper It is shrewdly designed to catch gudgeons with, but its eloquent diatribe against bribery cannot shut the eyes of the people to the fact that it took a large expenditure of money to secure Noble the nomination, and that he is to shell it out liberally between now and election day. He is "a candidate with a barrel" and is expected to do the handsome thing by the boys. Young Hensel also drew up the report of the Committee of Rules that caused such a kilkenny cat fight to break out in the convention as soon as the report was read. Although it is now half past one o'clock the convention is still fighting over the rules, and the scrimmage may last till daylight. Buncombe does very well in Democratic platforms, but when it comes to putting it into practice in rules governing conventions and state committees it is an entirely different thing, as Mr. Hensel has discovered.

CANDIDATES PRESENTED.

The following names were placed in nomination for State Treasurer: P. S. Newmeyer, Fayette; Col. P. N. Guthrie, Allegheny; Edward J. Kerr, Orange Noble, Erie; J. K. Bogert, Luzerne; J. M. Hackett, Northampton; John S. Davis, Philadelphia; Col. D. C. Dissinger, Northumberland; H. B. Plummer, Venango; J. K. Ross, York.

Two ballots were taken without choice and a recess was taken till 8 30.

Upon reassembling the balloting was continued. Newmeyer's name was withdrawn after the first ballot, Hackett's after the third, Ross' after the fourth, and Dissinger's after the fifth. At 11 o'clock the Convention had taken eight ballots, the last resulting as follows: Noble, 96; Davis, 72; Bogert, 29; Guthrie, 25; Plumer, 14; Kerr, 13. On the ninth ballot Noble received 140; Davis, 94; Bogert, 51; Plumer, 4, and Dill 3. Noble's nomination was then made unanimous.

Mr. Low offered the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That in Orange Noble, this day nominated for State Treasurer, on the platform adopted by this convention, we present a candidate entitled to the confidence of the people; one who if elected will keep the public money safely, make known his places of depost, hold his books and papers open to inspection, and preserve the commonwealth from any repetition of systematic embezzlements of interest and other spoliations which marked the long and scandalous career of the Republican Treasury ring; who will neither seek nor take any emoluments of office other than the lawful salary, and who will exert all his influence to prevent, expose and punish the plundering system of furnishing State supplies, which has long prevailed at Harrisburg to the shame of the commonwealth.

After the adoption of the closing resolution names were handed in for the State Central Committee. The report of the committee on Rules came up for action, Mr. James, of Northampton, in the chair, and a long discussion followed, which was still in progress at one o'clock.

Attempted Murder by Poisoning.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—Mr. Joseph Way, bookkeeper for John D. Long & Co., 527 Market street, has experienced some pretty hard luck recently. Early in the present summer he secured a residence at Bryn Mawr, whither he removed his family. His child has been ill for some weeks, and was of course rather fretful. The colored nurse, a girl about twenty years of age, became tired of losing her sleep, and concluded to effectually stop its cries, and also silence the entire household. On Tuesday last Mrs. Way and her mother, Mrs. Dixon, were taken violently ill after eating breakfast, but soon recovered sufficiently to be around the house. In the afternoon the baby became sick, and a physician who was called pronounced it a case of poisoning. After working with the little one for some time its life was finally saved. An analysis of the milk used by the family that day was made, and unmistakable evidences of the presence of croton oil discovered. The domestic departed pending the issuing of a warrant for her arrest, and has not yet been apprehended. Before leaving she confessed to a servant living next door that she had placed poison both in the milk and coffee, and had intended to kill the entire family.

The Star Route Prosecutions.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Benjamin H. Brewster, of Philadelphia, arrived in Washington to assist ex-District Attorney Bliss, of New York, and Col. Cook in the preparation and prosecution of the star route cases when indictments are secured. Bliss thinks ample evidence has been secured for presentation to the grand jury to entitle the Government to indictments, and he intends to push matters as promptly as possible. The Colonel is confident they will have President Arthur's support in every proper effort to convict and punish the guilty men.

President Arthur to-day directed the removal of Sol Star, Postmaster at Deadwood, Dakota, for confessed complicity with star route contractors in defrauding the Postoffice Department.

The Church and Temperance.

[From a paper by the Hon. W. E. Dodge, read before the Pan Presbyterian Council in Philadelphia, Wednesday, Sept. 29, 1880, the following extract is taken.]

Having had business interests for many years in the northern part of the State of Pennsylvania, I learned that there had been a great change in one county, which, when I first knew it, was noted for its intemperance, and I wrote to Hon. H. W. Williams, one of the District Judges of the State—and long an elder in the Presbyterian church—asking for particulars, and received the following reply:

"The county of Potter, to which you refer, is in this Judicial District. The county town is Coudersport. The history of the traffic in intoxicating drinks during the early history of the county was like that of the counties adjoining, except that drunkenness was, if possible, more prevalent. About twenty years ago attention was drawn to the subject, and the people elected Associate Judges pledged to refuse all applications for license. These officers were elected for five years. When that time had elapsed the issue was again made upon the election of Associate Judges, and decided as before by the election of the anti-license ticket. Before this second term expired the county was represented in the Legislature by the late Hon. John S. Mann, who procured the passage of a law prohibiting the granting of any license within the county, which law is still in force. For twenty years there has not been a licensed hotel or restaurant within the confines of the county. There are enough of both at all suitable places for the accommodation of the public, but in none of them is there a public bar. The sale, therefore, is conducted at great disadvantage, clandestinely, and is very limited in amount.

"As to results, I can say that while the county has been steadily growing in population and business, pauperism and crime have steadily decreased. For the past five years the county jail has been fully one-half the time without any other inmate than the keeper and his family. Twice within the past ten years I have at the regular terms of Court discharged the jury on the second day of the term, without their having been called to consider a single case of any description. The effect of this system is felt in many ways. Taxes are reduced, the business of the criminal courts diminished, industry and sobriety take the place of idleness and dissipation, and intelligence and morality are advanced. But one effort has been made to repeal this local law, and that failed by reason of the decided protest of a majority of the tax-payers of the county.

"I am glad you are going to try and stir our church on this subject. Vice of any sort only asks of the churches to be let alone. Grant to it toleration and it will take care of itself. Virtue must be aggressive or nothing. This experience in Potter county might have been that of every county in the State, if the same means had been used."

MURPHY MEETING.—The meeting of the Murphy Temperance Society, last Thursday evening, was one of unusual interest. Owing to the extreme severity of the cold the attendance was limited, but those who were there were amply repaid for their trouble. The meeting was called to order by the President, Judge Orvis. The devotional exercises were performed by Mr. H. Y. Stitzer. The roll was called and minutes of the last meeting read by the Secretary, Mr. D. Gray. By vote the hour of meeting was fixed at 7.30 P. M. Remarks for the good of the temperance cause then being in order, Judge Orvis proceeded to give some facts in relation to the liquor traffic our town, which are in their calcutions simply appalling. The Judge had promised to show by statistics that the liquor traffic in Bellefonte cost more in a direct manner than the total amount expended for the poor, for school purposes, and for religion, including churches and Sunday schools, and he abundantly demonstrated it to be a fact. He said that the amount of the poor tax levied in the borough was $4,500. Add to this the relief afforded by charitable citizens to the poor outside of the poor tax, estimated at $4,500 more, making in all $9,000, for the relief of the poor. The amount of school tax levied is $9,000. Add to this $4,500 more, expended in private schools and by sending children away to school, and we have $13,500 devoted to school purposes. Estimate the very liberal amount, $22,500, for the support of churches and Sunday schools, including all expenses, and we have a total of $45,000 expended for these three purposes—poverty, education and religion. By carefully gathered data, taken from the accounts of the different licensed bars of this borough, the Judge clearly showed that the cost to the consumers of the malt and spirituous liquors sold in these eight licensed places in our town is $34,430. Add to this the direct losses to the community of the labor, grain and other valuables wasted in its manufacture and sale, which amount to $19,000, and we have the direct expense of the liquor traffic in Bellefonte to the consumers and the community generally, $53,430, or $8,430 more than is expended for charity, education and religion.

The Judge did not take into this account any indirect losses in Court expenses arising from the continual criminal cases brought on by the use of intoxicating drink, or other consequential damage to the community from the same source.

Upon motion, the Judge was unanimously requested to prepare these statistics in proper form for publication in the various newspapers, for the enlightenment of the public upon this question, which he promised to do at as early a day as his duties would allow him.

N. B.—To the Church Temperance and Christian community of Centre county: Take heed, and ponder well what action you take on next election day, at the ballot-box, on the great issue now before us. Beware of your ballot influence, that it may not be a serpent to the destruction of your own child. "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin.—James, 4, 17.

Local Small Talk.

—Workmen are busily engaged in erecting an extensive wooden awning before the McClain block, next to this office.

—Work at the car shops is being pushed briskly just now, and forces are kept at work day and night. Nearly every day a large shipment of cars is made.

—It is reported that the Standard Nail and Iron Company, of Williamsport, have decided to remove their works to Bellefonte. If true, this will be another important addition to our already large list of substantial industries, and one of which we will have every reason to feel proud.

—Mr. George W. Musser, of Lemont, the raiser of a superior breed of sheep, last week shipped a couple away by express, one to Ohio and the other to Erie, this State. The wool clipped from these sheep is of an extraordinary length, and the fact that he receives orders from such great distances connot be wondered at.

—William Haas, while gunning in the woods a short distance below town on Monday, Sept 26, met with a slight accident which for a little while seemed fatal. A discharged gun frightened a horse, who in jumping about somehow struck William on the head knocking him down. He lay insensible for some time, but is now all right again.

—Our colored friends of the A. M. E. church will hold a festival in McAfferty's block, opposite the depot, commencing October 5th and continuing until the 7th. Supper will be served from 7 to 11 o'clock p. m. of each day. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the church, and we hope our friends will respond liberally to the noble cause.

—"Majah" Spiller, of the Bush House, on Tuesday had a slight misunderstanding with a couple of large dogs, when he took after them with an old broom. The dogs fortunately kept out of the "Majah's" reach, and after chasing them about some time trying to get a stroke at them he concluded to give it upas a bad job. The dogs have the joke on their colored antagonist.

—Mayor Powers desires us to announce that hereafter young men and boys brought before him for drunkenness and maliscious mischief will not be dealt with leniently. He says he is determined to break this practice of carousing and drinking up if it lies in his power, and will hereafter inflict the heaviest fines and punishments. So parties interested had better keep "one eye wide awake open."

—The new platform and railng erected at the depot are a decided improvement over the old ones, although the sharp edges of the latter make it very uncomfortable for loafers who were wont to crawl up on it and take a nap. We think the railroad company should have had at least a little thought for the comfort of these poor fellows. But it's an old saying that "corporations have no souls."

—The new steps erected in front of the depot in this place are a disgrace to the building and an insult to the people of our town. Surely Bellefonte is worthy of more recognition and better accommodations at the hands of the railroad officials than they receive. We doubt very much if there is a town in the State of its size that contributes more patronage to the company than does Bellefonte, and which receives less credit for it. These steps would be an insult to a back-woods barn, let alone to a public building belonging to the great Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

—Great credit is due Mayor Powers for the active part he took in making Memorial day in Bellefonte such a success. It was mainly through his instrumentalities that the saloons of town were closed on this occasion, and the close watch of both himself and his police officers kept everything quiet during the day. We feel as though the citizens of this place ought to manifest some substantial evidence of approval to our worthy chief executive, for the prominent part and the untiring labors he has devotted to this matter. We can at least return our individual thanks to him.

—Elmer Foulk, a young man of general bad character, was arrested on Monday night and lodged in jail for carrying and offering for sale that obscure sheet known as the Owl. It appears that he was admonished by his friends not to have anything to do with the paper, but heedless of their warnings he persisted in his own way which resulted as above. It would be no more than just if the thing was now investigated and the authors of all this evil brought to justice. Let Foulk be confined until he divulges what he knows about the matter and thus the question can be solved. This thing has been running about long enough.

BOYS' DEPARTMENT.

Organization of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A.

The Memorial Branch of the Y. M. C. A. for boys was organized at their Association room on Monday evening last. The attendance was unusually large, exceeding even the most sanguine expectations. Fully sixty boys enlisted themselves in this department, and all seemed so well pleased with this first experience, that it will not be long before the numbers are double. Short addresses were made by Messrs. A. G. Kimberly and Herbert Smith, of Berwick, J. F. Lynch, of Harrisburg, and Gen. Beaver. The boys do all the voting and elect all their officers, and are entering into the spirit of the work with great zeal. Preparations are being made for a number of entertainments and other matters which will interest and instruct the boys. The boys are formed into companies according to ages, and each has selelcted its own captain. The companies are as follows:

Memorial Services at Jacksonville.

MR. EDITOR:—Never before in the history of our little village have we been visited by an event of Providence of so shocking a character as that announcing the death of our President. Sadness and gloom are depicted upon every face, causing each one to vie with the other in terms of praise and adoration, and as our pen is unable to delineate his majestic countenance or concentrate the transcendent qualities of his mind, we will be content to allow his history to be his best eulogium, and the love and respect of his fellow man his faithful monument. We would invoke divine providence to aid all who are in authority that the noble words of a noble man may be verified, "God reigns and the Government still lives," and also ask that choicest blessings be allowed to rest upon his bereaved family, and that sufficient grace be given his aged mother to bear her sad affliction.

When life's scenes are shadowed o'er by death, may our different pathways meet the one that leads to a home in heaven, when we may meet the one for whom now we mourn with sorrowing hearts.

The patriotic ladies of our village, not to be outdone by our sister villages in respect to the deceased martyr, made a new and handsome flag which was appropriately draped and hung at half mast Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, while the bells of our different churches were tolled at intervals of one half minute. The flag was draped after a handsome design, gotten up by our fair friend, Miss Mary Zimmerman, who also superintended the work. The Rev. Mr. Wallen, of the Presbyterian church, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Hartzell, of the Roformed church.

The many friends of our esteemed citizen, G. M. Betz, who was struck a few evenings ago while out coon hunting on the ridge, by the falling meteor, is convalescing, and is considered by his physicians to be entirely out of danger.

It affords us great pleasure to learn that Mr Gray, of the editorial staff, is being benefitted by his visit to New England, and we hope the balmy breezes of that high latitude may have an invigorating influence on Mr. Al. Garman's moustache as well as on his mental condition, and should he visit this place on his return and see our handsome ladies we think Conway's daughters would be forgotten.

As our communication has grown longer than we intended we will close, hoping that speedy justice may be meted out to that grizzly-headed hyena, who is being fattened on government "potatoes." E. J. W.

Memorial Services at Snow Shoe.

Memorial services of an undenominational character were held here on Monday last at 10½ o'clock, in respect to the late President of the United States, James A. Garfield.

After the reading of the Proclamation of President Arthur and Governor Hoyt, appointing Monday, Sept. 26 as a day of humiliation and prayer, a moment was spent in silent prayer. An appropriate hymn was sung, prayer was offered, and the following Scripture lessons read, viz—The 49th and 64th Psalms, and the 13th chapter of Romans.

A short address was then delivered, in which an account of the early struggles of the great martyr for an education was read.

The services closed with singing and prayer and the benediction.

During the day business was suspended, and the bells were tolled for half an hour prior to the time set for the funeral at Lake View cemetery, Cleveland, Ohio.

Thus did Snow Shoe join in showing respect to the memory of the nation's honored dead. Peace to his ashes.

The following resolutions were adopted by an unanimous vote:

WHEREAS, A violent hand has laid low the honored President of our land, therefore

Resolved, That we bow in humble submission to the wisdom of Him who wills it so; and that while sorrowing for our loss we recognize the fact that "the government at Washington still lives," and the God of Nations still rules over all;

Resolved, That we deprecate the act of an enraged assassin as the outgrowth of a depraved heart and hardened conscience;

Resolved, That we herewith express our sympathy for the bereaved family and relations of the noble deceased, and pray for the blessing of God to comfort and sustain them in their hours of trial.

Memorial Services at State College.

Monday, Sept. 26, was appropriately observed at the Pennsylvania State College. After the customary morning prayers at eight o'clock, the presiding officer announced that the regular duties of the day would be suspended, and the day observed in accordance with the proclamation of the President of the United States.

The College bell was tolled from half-past one until two o'clock, and at the latter hour the chapel was filled with students and residents of the vicinity. The pulpit was tastefully draped in black. In the absence of the acting president, the secretary of the faculty, Prof. Buckhout, presided, and the following programme was observed:

Anthem—by the choir.
Reading of the proclamation of President Chester A. Arthur, by Prof. Barnard.
Prayer by Prof. Campbell.
Music.
Biographical sketch of President Garfield, by Prof. Buckhout.
Extracts from speeches of President Garfield, by Prof. Smith.
Music.
Lessons from the life of President Garfield, by Prof. Osmond.
Music
Benediction by Prof. Campbell.

At sunset the cadets paraded in full dress, and an artillery salute of twenty guns was fired.

Mad Dogs.

Dr. Dorworth, on Tuesday last, shot and killed a rabid dog near his residence on east High street. It is reported that quite a number of dogs about town have shown signs of rabidness lately, and it would be wise for those who are brought in contact with canines to keep a sharp look-out. What would be better still would be the enforcement of the borough ordinance compelling owners of dogs to muzzle them. The large number of dogs allowed to run loose on our streets is an intolerable nuisance, and at this time when hydrophobia stares one in the face is extremely unpleasant and dangerous besides. But children are more exposed to the danger than grown persons, for if there is a dog, whether rabid or not, anywhere in the neighborhood the boys are sure to be after it and if they should be bitten our people will have themselves to blame for it. We think it would be wise to muzzle the dogs in time, and not run any risks.

More Fire.

Wednesday afternoon about four o'clock a fire was discovered eminating from the roof of the dwelling house belonging to Mr. Peter McMahon, on Reservoir hill, but the prompt action of a few neighbors with a couple buckets of water soon extinguished it. But last night, shortly after supper, another alarm was sounded, and on investigation it was discovered that a few smouldering ashes had rekindled a flame. The fire department immediately responded, but owing to its elevated location they were unable to reach it with a stream. Buckets were brought into requisition and the flames were subdued after considerably damaging the roof. The loss will probably reach fifty dollars, and we cannot say whether or not Mr. McMahon had any insurance on the building.

Notes from Moshannon.

Never having seen anything in print relating to our little town, I shall endeavor to say something about it in an humble way. We seem to have been lost sight of lately, but Moshannon is now looming up and hopes to be the county metropolis at no very distant day. Not long since a number of empty houses were to be found in our village, but now they are all occupied and a great demand for more houses is made.

Our enterprising neighbors, Messrs. Hinton, McClain & Co., have rebuilt the saw-mill known as the old Moshannon mill, destroyed some time ago. They will have a double propelling power of steam and water, having lately placed in position a new portable engine. Their lumber and shingles are said to be of a very good quality, and their demands are about as great as they can conveniently supply. In connection with their mill they have an excellent dry goods and grocery store, in which they do a large business.

Mr. Lucas, another of our enterprising and prosperous citizens, has selected a site and is making preparations to erect quite an extensive grist mill. This will be an improvement we have long needed, and one our citizens will all highly appreciate. Heretofore our milling was all done in either Bellefonte or Milesburg, and owing to the great distance made it very inconvenient for our people. So it will be seen that our town is likely to come to the light again, and we look forward with the hope that ere long we will have as smart and prosperous village as Centre county has ever seen.

It is expected that a new line of railroad will be located somewhere near Moshannon before many years roll by. ISGO.

Rosh Hashana.

Saturday, Sept. 24, our Hebrew fellow-citizens celebrated the first day of the new year, being the beginning of the five thousand six hundred and forty-second year of the world according to the Jewish calendar. On the corresponding day of the Gentile year everybody makes merry, in ways more or less innocent, but no one seems to imagine the occasion a fitting one to gather in places of worship to pray and praise; but to the Hebrew it is the greatest religious day of the year. Many people, seeing the Jews only in business, where one man is just as bad as another and a great deal worse, wonder how the race is exactly what it was four thousand years ago, when in the meantime other generations have in succession arisen, grown and disappeared. The services of that day suggest an answer: the Jewish rase never ceases to be true to its traditions and to cherish a high ideal of a Supreme Power which it believes the special protector of the Hebrew nation. In the face of all that Jewish faith has done for those who profess it the critic who is wise will keep silent, preferring to learn rather than to teach.

—We notice that the Cambria county authorities offer a reward of six hundred dollars for the apprehension of the parties who shot and seriously wounded Oliver P. Meyers, on the 17th inst., the particulars of which have already been printed in these columns. The guilty parties are known to be Molly Maguires, but their indentity has never been discovered.

—It is announced by parties who pretend to know that the Standard Nail and Iron Company have fully decided to locate in Bellefonte, on the property near the glass works formerly used by the Bellefonte iron company.

State Pencilings.

The streams in Fayette county are lower than they have been before for twenty seven years.

Gray and black squirrels are leaving Indiana for Cambria in large numbers. They are hunting water.

A physician in Armstrong county is reported to have cured a wealthy man of cancer, and received as a fee $5,000.

Tunkhannock, Wyoming county, has a water famine, the amount of water to be used by each family being apportioned.

The postmaster of Washington, Pa., in making change the other day, gave a two and a half dollar gold piece for a penny.

Four men were in the firemen's parade, at Reading, from Lancaster, whose aggregate weight was eleven hundred pounds.

The last half mile of the Meadville and Linesvills railroad was completed on Sunday, and regular trains will begin running this week.

Robert Barron, of East Elizabeth, on Saturday evening fell from a train on the Pan Handle railroad bridge, at Pittsburg, and went through the trestle. He died shortly after.

The monument to be erected to the late Bayard Taylor at Longwood, East Marlborough, by his widow, will consist of a Greek altar of granite three feet six inches high and two feet eight inches in diameter. On the top will be a lamp with a flame, and on the front a bronze bas-relief portrait of the illustrious dead.

ALL THE NEWS OF THE DAY IS GIVEN in the REPUBLICAN.

Bellefonte Republican.

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—Another Uncle Tom troupe is heading this way. Gracious!

—A coat of new paint adorns the new Lamb street bridge over Spring creek.

—The market Saturday morning was largely attended, and a goodly display of produce was offered.

—"Old Prob" promises a cool wave, and we suppose it will reach Bellefonte about the first of January.

—The rain of Sunday night has cooled the atmosphere delightfully, and made life once more worth living.

—Grauer &Co.'s new store building at Snow Shoe is about completed,and will be ready for occupancy in a few days.

—Livery men say they have had a better run this summer and fall than for a like period of time for fifteen years.

—Ball-goers should not forget the dance to be given by the Junior Order of American Mechanics next Thursday night.

—The funeral of Mrs. W. H. Blair, Thursday afternoon, was largely attended by our citizens, and many friends of the family from a distance were present.

—People who imagine that newspaper men are all Christians should step into an office about press time, when the hands are about two hours late and they "pi" a form.

—Tho boys' meeting in the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening should be largely attended. Parents ought to try and interest their children in this movement, for we feel sure they will never have cause for regret if they do so.

—Monday was observed by our Hebrew friends as the Day of Atonement, and as a consequence all their stores were closed during the day. The celebration of the day began at 6 o'clock Sunday evening, and continued until the same hour Monday.

—Duprez & Benedict's famous minstrel troupe is coming this way and will exhibit in Reynolds' Opera House on the evening of Tuesday, the 11th instant. This one of the finest minstrel parties on the road, and of its success the newspapers speak in the highest terms.

—James L. Sommerville, of this place, has purchased all the coal and lumber on the lands belonging to the Bird Coal and Iron Company, near Snow Shoe. This is a very large purchase, and we believe it is the intention of Mr. Sommerville to begin operations at once in developing the several mines and cutting the timber.

—This is fair week, and if the weather proves favorable an immense crowd may be expected in town. The amusement department of the fair has been well worked up, and a number of fast horses from Williamsport, Jersey Shore, Tyrone, Altoona and other places will positively be here to take part in the several races.

—Remarks an exchange: "A man in Berks county has worn a pair of stockings constantly for thirteen years." Pretty durable stockings, but we should think they would soon need washing. Health journals say that stockings should be changed at least once a year, on sanitary grounds alone.

—Thursday evening, at half-past 6 o'clock, Miss Nannie McGinley, daughter of Daniel McGinley, Esq., was united in marriage with Dr. John Coolidge, of Carbondale, Pa. The ceremony, performed by the Rev. Mr. Penypacker, took place at the residence of the bride's father, and was witnessed by a large number of friends. The happy couple departed on the late train for the home of the groom, in Carbondale.

—Three tramps, by far the worse off for drinking too much bad whiskey, were locked up Saturday night by officers Montgomery and Morgan. They were traveling about with a bundle of old umbrella sticks thrown over their shoulders, and late in the evening gathered themselves in Cryder's lumber yard where their didos disgusted the people of that locality, who made complaint and secured their arrest.

—Secretary Ray, of the Agricultural Society, desires all owners of horses and buggies to visit the fair grounds to-day and use the track as much as they please. The heavy rain of Sunday night somewhat disturbed its former good condition, but a little driving over it will again pack it down and put it in excellent condition for the races of Thursday and Friday, which he says will be the finest exhibition of speed ever seen in Centre county.

SHOOTING A BROTHER.

A Revolver in the Hands of a Child and the Terrible Result.

The article which appeared in Saturday's daily relative to a shooting affair supposed to have occurred on Logan street Friday evening contained only too much truth. The shooting really took place, and a young son of Mr. Walt Keeler narrowly escaped being killed thereby. The particulars in the case are about as follows, as near as can be ascertained from various sources: It appears that John Keeler, a brother to Walt Keeler, the father, and an uncle of the wounded boy, was the possessor of an old revolver. which he presented to his young nephew. Before doing so, however, he emptied, as he thought, all the chambers of the revolver of their contents. After giving it to the boy nothing more was thought of the matter, and it seems that only a few minutes before the explosion of the cartridge the lad held it direct at a little sister and snapped the trigger, but which fortunately held fire. The room in which they were playing was occupied by several members of the family, among them being quite a number of small children. The lad who held the revolver was sitting at a table, where he was wrapped in interest over the dangerous weapon, when suddenly and unexpectedly a loud report startled the household. The screaming of a younger brother soon told the result, and immediately a messenger was sent in search of a doctor. An examination revealed the fact that the ball had entered the back part of the right shoulder, just under the shoulder joint, and that it was lodged against the right shoulder blade. The wound at present is very much swollen, in consequence of which the doctors are unable to probe for and remove the ball. Although a very painful flesh wound, the attending surgeons do not consider it necessarily dangerous, and think in a few week the lad will be able to be about again with his little play-fellows.

There is a very striking moral in this connection which parents should not fail to make a note of. Firearms are a very dangerous thing in the hands of children, to say the least, and although the uncle probably never dreampt of any evil resulting from his act of kindness he ought to have known that a revolver was not exactly the right thing for children to play with. A cartridge is liable to be picked up anywhere by children in their prowlings and then the only things necessary with them in order to have a good time is to get hold of an old revolver. These parents should be very thankful that their carelessness in this matter did not result more seriously, and we suppose it will be a lesson to them that they will not soon forget. We believe in the theory that the most effective way of making good men is by making good boys, and revolvers never were intended to exert a salutary influence over the minds of children. Parents would do well to understand this and act accordingly.

Death of Mrs. Nancy Reed.

We are called upon to announce the death of Mrs. Nancy Reed, one of Bellefonte's oldest inhabitants, which occurred at her residence on Allegheny street Saturday evening last. She had been suffering and was in feeble health for a number of years, and her death will not be a surprise to anyone. She was in her 82d year, and the cause of death is said to have been general debility. Mrs. Reed was twice married during her life, and was the mother of four children, among whom is the Hon. James Milliken, now traveling in Europe. She was a member and constant attendant of the Presbyterian church, and her presence there will be greatly missed by all. The mourning friends have the sympathy of the community in their severe affliction.

—The Bush House office is being very much improved in appearance by handsome new wall paper of a light gilt design. The new bowling-alley and billiard room in the basement will be another addition to the hotel, and one which will greatly add to the attractievness of the place. The latter will be thrown open to the public to-morrow night, if nothing happens to interfere with the work.

—A slight fire at the car shops, and the desperate ringing of the bell on one of the buildings, caused a good deal of excitement Tuesday night. The fire originated in the core room among some old clothing, but was fortunately discovered and extinguished before much damage had been done.

—Travel on the Snow Shoe road is not as heavy just now as it was several weeks ago.

Hymen's Work.

Mr. J. Howard Lingle, one of Bellefonte's representative young men and a member of the firm of Wm. P. Duncan & Co., machinists, left Monday for Bloomsburg, where this morning at 9 o'clock he will be united in marriage with Miss May Brower, daughter of Mr. J. J. Brower, one of the leading merchants of that place. Invitations for this pleasant and important event have been out for several days, and quite a large number of ladies and gentlemen from Bellefonte will be present to witness the ceremonies. The nuptial knot will be tied by Rev. John Hewitt, rector of St. John's P. E. church of this place, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Zahner, of Bloomsburg. The bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Ada Brower, and Miss Lottie Powell, of New York city, while Mr. Frank Montgomery, of this place, will act as the groom's best man. The usherers for the occasion will be Messrs. J. L. Spangler and Thomas Keogh, of Bellefonte, Richard Beaston, of Fowler, and James C. Williams, of Baltimore. Rev. Hewitt and Mr. Montgomery left with the groom Monday evening for Bloomsburg,and Messrs. Spangler and Keogh, accompanied by Misses Emma Lingle, sister of the groom, Jennie Reynolds, Flora Fox, Nannie Harris, Bessie Montgomery, and probably a few others, left on the morning train yesterday joining the wedding party in the evening.

The ceremony, we believe, will take place at the residence of the bride's father in Bloomsburg, and will be witnessed only by relatives and personal friends of the contracting parties. After the ceremony has been performed the bride and groom will embark on an eastern tour, and spend their honey-moon visiting Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and a number of other places of note and interest. On their arrival home they will occupy rooms in the Bush House, where for the present they will make their home.

The happy groom is a young man well worthy a good wife, and is too well known in Bellefonte to need any special reference at this time. The fortunate bride is said to be a lady of fine qualities and equally worthy of a good husband. She has visited Bellefonte several times within the past few years, where she has a number of intimate and admiring friends among both sexes. Altogether they are a promising couple, and their household ought to be a very happy one. We can only hope, along with their numerous friends, that their course through life may be a pleasant one, and their pathway strewn with the choicest blessings.

A Word in Time.

Safe robbers are operating successfully in our neighboring county of Mifflin. The other night at Lewistown they entered a store room and in a remarkably short time blew open a safe and decamped with their plunder, securing about six hundred dollars. In other parts of the same county complaints of the same kind are being made, although the thieves are not confining themselves alone to this special branch of pilfering. Dwelling houses are being entered and robbed of all their valuable contents that can possibly be carried off, and all sorts of nefarious practices indulged in. It does not seem to be confined to the darkness of night, either, for frequently we hear of daring robberies being committed in broad day light. It might not be out of place at just this time to again warn our citizens in this matter. We have warned them time and again about carelessness in leaving their houses and places of business insecurely gaarded against these villains on their midnight predations, but in doing so we feel that we are performing nothing more than a simple duty. If our moralizings or persuasions are not heeded it is not because they shouldn't be, and it you wake up some morning and find that you have been visited by these fellows you will probably give some heed to the matter. And this is just the time to look for them, too. Bellefonte has been remarkably free from robbery for some time, and her people are in just the right condition to be gulled effectually. So we will warn them once again that they should lock their stable before the horse is stolen, and they may not have cause for regret.

—A new arrangement for packing cylinder heads, recently patented by Mr. William Temple, an engineer on the Snow Shoe road, is attached to an engine in the machine shop of Gordon & Landis, where it works like a charm. Men who pretend to understand it speak very highly of the invention, and seem to think it is destined to become very popular.

—Sylvester P. Foster, a Huntingdon printer, was injured on a train wreck in Illinois last week.

—Silas M. Baily will peel that Orange Noble-y.

MR. FUREY DECLINES.

He Doesn't Want to be Register Under the Circumstances.

Joseph W. Furey, of the Watchman office, lately nominated by the county Greenback Convention for the office of Register, addresses the following open letter to Chairman Thomas, respectfully declining the nomination:

BELLEFONTE., Oct. 1, 1881.

JACOB V. THOMAS, ESQ., Chairman National Greenback County Committee:

My Dear Sir—On the 13th of September the National Greenback Convention did me the honor to put my name on its ticket as a candidate for Register of Centre county.

Permit me to say that while I appreciate the compliment and thank my Greenback friends for this mark of their confidence and esteem, I am in honor bound to respectfully decline the nomination.

Having submitted my name to the Democratic Convention, and pledged myself to abide by its decision, it would not be honorable in me to turn my face against my party friends simply because they chose another in preference to myself.

While I am a Greenbacker in theory and believe that to be the proper financial doctrine, I have all my life been a Democrat in principle and have acted with that party. It would look badly now, simply because I was defeated in Convention for an office hardly worth contending for, to repudiate the sentiments and principles to which I have always belonged, and which I thoroughly believe to be the best hope of the people of this country.

The guerrilla in politics is not a creature to be admired. What else would I be should I accept a nomination tendered me under such circumstances?

At the same time I desire to say that I fully appreciate the respect shown me by my Greenback friends.

Very truly, your friend,

JOE W. FUREY.

—The articles which recently appeared in this paper, and also in the Watchman,. relative to the action of Mayor Powers in keeping peace and quietness on our streets, seem to have attracted a good deal of attention on the part of our citizens. When we realize that the office is one to which no salary is attached, and one which causes an endless amount of anxiety and worryment of mind to the occupant, we can better appreciate our worthy Chief Burgess' position. It has been suggested that the citizens of Bellefonte show their appreciation of his efforts in this matter by presenting him with some substantial token of our respect and esteem—something that will be a credit and pleasure to our people as well as to the worthy recipient. Mayor Powers is a most efficient public officer, and his many personal sacrifices for our general welfare should not go unrecognized.

—The box-factory in this place has received an order from a Philadelphia party for 38,000 boxes,of various sizes, most of which will be used for the purpose of boxing and shipping oils of different kinds. Superintendent Hamilton informs us that he shortly expects an order that will occupy them steadily, running day and night, until next spring to fill. This is very encouraging news.

—One of the car works officials informed us, while in conversation the other day in regard to the recent fire in the core room, that it was not customary with them to ring the bell in the evening calling men to work, and that at any time our citizens should hear it ring at an unusual hour they may make up their minds that somethinz is wrong.

—The annual convention of the Centre County Sunday-School Association will be held in Jacksonvile, October 11th. The convention will be held in the Rerformed church, at that place, and a most interesting and profitable time is expected. Every Sabbath-school in the county is requested to send a delegate.

—Mrs. A. Krom, of Lock Haven, desires to publicly express her thanks to Gregg Post, of this place, for kindness shown her and her family at the funeral services of her husband in this place several days since, and also to Messrs. Brockerhoff, Garman and Baum for favors on the same occasion.

—A number of communications from different parts of the county have been received, and will be printed just as soon as we can find space to do so. So our correspondents needn't feel down-hearted about the matter and think their letters have been rejected.

—Mr. Peter McMahon, whose house was damage by fire on Wednesday night last, had it fully insured, so he will not lose anything by the matter. This is a good thing for him, as he is a hard-working, sober man, and can ill afford to lose anything.

—The Clinton Republican says tha $4,000 are paid out monthly by th car works. Just twice that, Mr. Republican, if you please. Pay-day at the car works occurs twice a month, and $4,000 are paid out each pay-day, or $8,000 a month.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Cyrus Alexander is visiting friends in Milroy, Mifflin county.

R. M. Magee, Esq., and family have returned home after a pleasant trip to Bedford Springs.

Mrs. Amanda Schroyer, after spending about three months among her friends in Bellefonte and vicinity, left Thursday afternoon for Louisville, Ky., her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Garman returned Wednesday after an extended tour through New York State and the east, having been gone from home several weeks.

Harrsburg Telegraph: Gen. James A. Beaver, of Bellefonte, in the city. The General is looking well and is confident that Gen. Baily will be the next State Treasurer.

Rev. John Hewitt, accompanied by his sick father, arrived Friday evening from Kansas. We hope the aged gentleman's health may find improvement in our balmy atmosphere.

Mr. J. H. Mann,of Lewistown,is sojourning at the residence of his brother, Mr. J. Fearon Mann of this place. Mr. Mann is an influential citizen of Mifflin county, and is proprietor of a large axe factory located a short distance from Lewistown.

A party composed of his Honor, Judge Orvis, Treasurer Yearick, ex-Prothonotary Williams, and a number of others, together with a Lock Haven party, among whom is Sheriff Barker, will leave this morning on a two week's hunting and fishing excursion on the Alleghenies, near Beech Creek. A goodly supply of ammunition and bait,together with an abundance of "etcaetera," has been laid in store for the occasion, and the amount of "shooting" done will be something wonderful.

Hon. John Fenlon, of Cambria, Senator Amos H. Mylin of Lancaster, Hon. Alfred Slack of Allegheny, Hon. Wm. B. Roberts of Montgomery, Hon. J. Millham of Wayne and Hon. George W. Hall of Philadelphia, members of the committee appointed by the late Legislature for the purpose of investigating affairs at the State College, arrived in town Monday night and proceeded to the college yesterday morning to attend to the duties of their appointment. Senator Alexander, of Bellefonte, is chairman of the committee.

Mr. H. Byxbe, foreman of the Republican office, has resigned to accept a situation on the Erie Dispatch, and left Saturday evening for his new field. Mr. Byxbe is a gentleman of rare ability both as a journalist and printer, and during his stay in Bellefonte by his many good qualities has endeared himself to many of our best citizens, all of whom regret his departure. He will devote his attention more particularly to short-hand work in the future, by which the craft will lose an able member. We wish him every success in his new position.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a special meeting of the Garfield and Arthur Club, of Howard, this county, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted in reference to the sad death ofour late President, James A. Garfield. They are signed by the secretary of the association and members of the committee, viz., L. R. Hensyl, Wm. P. Lucas, Joseph Royer, B. F. Holter and J. A. Magee:

WHEREAS, We have learned with heartfelt sorrow and deep regret the death of our beloved President, and

Resolved, That while it is our painful duty to bow submissively to the mysterious and all-wise dispensation of God,we most sincerely mourn and deplore the early death of the President in the very prime of his years and in the midst of his philanthropic labors.

Resolved, That it is with both pride and pleasure that we can look back to his character as a great statesman and a good President, and above all to the noble example he set before the world in his life of temperance and religion.

Resolved, That our earnest and warmest sympathy is here expressed and extended to his sorrowing and truly bereaved family, whose last earthly prop and stay has been thus suddenly removed; and we devoutly pray that they may be sustained in their great trial by the tender care and helping hand of the great physician of souls, who is always ready to succor the sorrowing and heal the broken hearted.

—We have been requested to announce that the contestants for the handsome gold-headed cane to be voted for at the Catholic fair and festival are Mr. Theadore Kelley, of Spring township, and Mr. Patrick Loughery, of Milesburg. Mr. John Ragan, of Snow Shoe, who at the outstart was Mr. Loughery's opponent in the contest, has withdrawn in favor of Mr. Kelly, and the fight promises to be very exciting between these two gentlemen, with the chances pretty evenly divided.

—A little daughter of Samual Vachust of Linn &McCoy's iron works, fell from a tree Thursday, on which she was playing, and dislocated a wrist.

Philipsburg's Water Works.

Philipsburg's water works are about completed, and on Saturday last, for the first time, the citizens drew their supply from the new source. About twenty thousand feet of pipe are already laid, which will be increased with the demands for water. Messrs. Wm. P. Duncan & Co., of this place, have about finished their contract with the Philipsburg water company, and on Saturday the large, handsome twenty-horse power engine was set in motion and is said to have worked admirably. Two hundred gallons of water per minute are forced into the pipes and consumed at the present time, but this amount is expected to be increased nearly one-half before long. The water is taken from Cold Stream creek, which runs close to the town, and is of rather a good quality. The citizens of that prosperous little town feel highly elated over the matter, and we guess not without very good reason.

Crider's New Mill.

Messrs. P. B. Crider & Son, whose mill at Snow Shoe was destroyed by fire several months ago, have been engaged ever since, with a large number of workmen, at rebuilding it, and will in a few days be ready to resume active operations. In consequence of their misfortune, they have gotten considerably behind in their orders, and it will require steady work both day and night for the next few months to again catch up. They expect to cut when once under headway about 30,000 feet of lumber daily, most of which will be pine and hemlock. The shingle department of the mill will also be in readiness for active operations in a short time, and in which the capacity has been so increased that from twenty-five to thirty thousand shingles will be cut and packed every twenty-four hours. About twenty-five men will be employed in the two departments of the mill.

Horse's Leg Broken.

A young horse, belonging to Mr. James Gramley, residing near Hublersburg, had one of his legs broken Friday morning in a very peculiar manner. Mr. Gramley was coming down the Bishop street hill with a heavy load of lumber on his wagon, when the brake in some manner became deranged and the wagon commenced moving pretty rapidly down the steep grade. The horse in some manner fell, and in so doing broke some part of the harness which freed him from the wagon, and which ran over one of his legs, breaking the bone completely in two. The leg was securely bandaged, and the injured animal removed to his quarters in the stable of the owner, but there are grave doubts whether the injured member can ever be repaired.
